LA VERNE
WEEKEND COLLEGE

La Verne is extending another opportunity to the mature student through a new Weekend College. This College offers a full range of programs and services. Courses are available Friday evenings and Saturday. A student may take either a full or a part-time load of academic work.

Call 593-3511 Ext. 226 and ask for Weekend College.

Community College Degree Accepted

You will receive full credit, up to a maximum of 70 semester hours if you have an Associate Degree from an accredited California Community College. The Community College major will be accepted either as elective credit or as a part of a continuing major program.

La Verne accepts the integrity of a Community College degree. A degree program signifies that the faculty of a college gave serious thought to the content and prepared an integrated educational experience. When a student has completed such a program, La Verne accepts the student as competent to move on to the next educational level. In accepting the associate degree, La Verne does not evaluate the college or the degree but accepts as fact that a portion of an educational program has been completed.

La Verne does make judgments regarding the quality of work done at La Verne and expects all students registered in the College to do high quality work. Each student must meet La Verne's requirements in general education and the major field.

Three Schedule of Classes

The new Weekend schedule will make it possible for you to complete your degree by attending classes on Friday evenings and Saturdays. There is also a day schedule and an evening schedule of classes. There is a free flow of students among these three schedules. Courses taken in any of these apply equally toward your program.

Two Tracks:

General College Program and Accelerated Program for Adults

La Verne offers two tracks toward the degree. The first is the General College Program track in which a student meets the requirements of the college by accumulating semester hours of credit through the formal learning mode.

The second track is the La Verne College Accelerated Program for Adults (LVCAPA) in which a student may utilize informal learning (i.e.; credit may be awarded on the basis of competence derived from work experience), as well as formal learning.

Both tracks are open to the Weekend student.

DEGREES

The purpose of a bachelor's degree program at La Verne College is to provide the student with an experience of broad liberal arts education, strongly value-oriented, that will also permit ample opportunity for students to specialize in preparation for further education or direct entry into a career. The College, therefore, will expect its graduates to possess the following competencies.

1. Competence in Communication, i.e., competence in reading, writing and speaking English
2. Competence in an Aesthetic Activity, i.e., active participation in art, music, acting or dance
3. Introduction to Academic Disciplines. A liberal education will enable students to master the tools of learning in various disciplines and provide them with some close experience in the major fields of learning: Natural Sciences, Social Sciences, and Humanities.
4. Competence in a Major Area of Academic Emphasis. A graduate will have demonstrated competence in a selected area which includes the ability to demonstrate mastery of the basic language, the conceptual framework, research methodology, a critical capacity and the basic information of a chosen field.

Upon completion of the requirements for graduation, and upon the recommendation of the faculty, the Bachelor's Degree will be conferred.

La Verne College, a small, independent, liberal arts school, offers progressive, co-educational four-year undergraduate, graduate and law degree programs.

Undergraduates may earn the Associate of Arts, Associate of Science, Bachelors of Arts and Bachelor of Science Degrees. The Graduate School grants the Master of Arts, Master of Arts in Teaching, Master of Science, Master of Education, Master of Public Administration and the Doctorate of Education in School Management Degrees. The La Verne College Law Center offers day and night programs leading to the degree of Juris Doctor.

La Verne College is recognized throughout the state of California for the outstanding caliber of its graduates, especially within the field of education.

FOUR MAJORS

- Business Administration
- Communication Arts
- *Human Services
- *Public Administration

Programs and concentration areas of special design which build upon these four majors may be organized by an individual student working with an Academic Advisor.

*A concentration in Criminal Justice may be pursued within the Human Services or Public Administration majors.

Modes of Learning

A major goal of the Weekend program is to adapt to the special needs of the working adult student. Students may earn academic credit in several ways.

Prior Learning—Formal learning at other accredited Colleges is accepted by transcript, where grades are C or better. Informal learning may have been gained on the job, through non-credit courses, and in other ways. Such learning must be validated and then may be evaluated by the faculty for academic credit. A student may also earn academic credit through course challenge. (See the College Catalog.)

Independent Study—Students may enroll in an Independent Study working with an appropriate member of the faculty. The Department Chairperson or Office of the Dean of Undergraduate Affairs approves each Independent Study proposal. The student is expected to initiate the proposal and carry the major responsibility for the study. Each study is evaluated by the faculty.

Directed Study—Students may enroll in a Directed Study if the course is listed in the College Catalog, is not being offered at a time when it is available to the student, and approval is obtained from the professor and the Department Chairperson or the Office of the Dean of Undergraduate Affairs.

Mini-Courses—Some courses are offered for 1 semester unit of credit. These courses are completed on a single weekend or, in some cases, on two weekends.

Full-Courses—Full-courses are for 4 semester units of credit and are offered on varied calendar and time schedules. Some 4 semester unit courses may be completed in a month, others are scheduled on an every other weekend basis over 8 weeks, and still others will meet for 3 hours each weekend for the semester.

Adults - Is There A College For You?

College isn't for the traditional student alone. There are many capable persons who want a college education but for numerous reasons feel that it is too late or too difficult to go to college. The La Verne College Accelerated Program for Adults (LVCapa) serves the educational needs of men and women beyond the usual college-going ages. The College takes the view that the opportunity for people to learn in their middle and later years is as significant to them and to society as the opportunities afforded them in their youth.

LVCAPA IS A COURSE OF STUDY:

- That is especially designed for the working adult who is concerned with personal and professional advancement and who would like to earn a college degree while maintaining a full-time position;
- That respects the validity of previous personal and work experiences which can be translated into college credit;
- That enables a student to increase job mobility, to change careers and/or to pursue more challenging and responsible positions;
- That broadens personal perspectives; discovers new meanings, experiences, values; and offers a fuller realization of personal potential and life enrichment.

GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS

128 Semester hours are required for graduation. La Verne College accepts the integrity of the associate degree from the State of California (others on a case-by-case basis) up to a maximum of 70 semester hours. All transfer work is given careful evaluation. The residence requirement is met by enrolling in 8 courses at La Verne College. The courses may include challenges or independent studies as well as regular classes.

ADMISSION

Any person seeking an opportunity to participate in a highly personalized educational program should consider applying for admission to the LVCapa Program. Not all college learning happens in the classroom and the College will respect the background and personal history of each student as well as assist the student in profiting from previous learning experiences. Students who have been enrolled in other four year or two year colleges are eligible to apply as transfer students. Because each program is individualized, applications may be submitted and studies may begin at any time. For further information and application forms, please write: LVCapa, La Verne College, 1950 Third Street, La Verne, California 91750. Or call collect (714) 593-9270.

Individualized courses of study.
Year-round registration (you can register any time).
Intensive on-going academic counseling.
Flexible class schedules for evenings, weekends and regular courses as well as individualized schedules for individualized programs.
Flexible time frames allowing students to progress at their own pace and at their own initiatives.
The earning of credits by regular courses, by independent study, by directed study, by challenges, by CLEP tests.

(1) a four semester hour introductory course, "Seminar in Experiential Learning" at $85 a semester hour, $100 services/counseling fee, $200 a month financial installments for a minimum of 12 months.
(2) $100 services/counseling fee and $85 a semester hour. (32 semester hours fulfill residence requirement and may include course challenges, Independent studies, and experience credit.)

COMMENTS FROM LVCAPA GRADUATES:

Nancy Joslyn, Claremont, says..."Because the Capa Program allowed me to be self-directed rather than directed by others, I had my first really creative academic experience."

Draymond Crawford, Fontana, says... "Most corporations desire personnel and managerial positions to have at least a bachelor's degree. Capa helped me meet that requirement."

Jim Shefter, Redondo Beach, says... "The concept of experience credits is not only valid but should be adopted by every college and university as a standard tool."

No presentation in television history has aroused such anticipation and received such advance acceptance as ABC's dramatization of "Roots." Alex Haley's landmark book of the same title, airing as an eight-part presentation (on consecutive nights) on ABC, beginning Sunday with a 2-hour first episode from 9 to 11PM.

"Roots" was inspired by stories, told to author Haley by his grandmother when he was a boy in Henning, Tenn. The tales went back to her grandparents and their grandparents all the way to a man she called "the African" who, as a boy, had been abducted and dragged aboard a slave ship bound for Colonial America. Years later, as a writer, Haley began a ten year search across three continents to authenticate the story. He discovered not only the name of "the African"—Kunta Kinte—but the precise location from which Kunta was abducted, taken to Maryland and sold to a Virginia planter.

"Roots" begins in 1750 with the birth of the boy Kunta Kinte in the village of Juffure in The Gambia, West Africa. The boy's abduction to America as a slave leads to a fight for freedom of body and soul that continues throughout his own life and the lives of the generations that followed on the plantations of pre-and-post-Civil War America. It's a struggle that involves slaves and freedmen, farmers and blacksmiths, lumber mill workers and Pullman porters, lawyers and architects—and one author.

The story covers more that 100 vital and agonizing years of a changing America, culminating in the nation's bloodiest war, when the growing land was violently divided.

THE TRIUMPH OF AN AMERICAN FAMILY

ROOTS. Today's best-selling book by Alex Haley comes to television tonight.
ROOTS is the true story of men and women who helped build America.
ROOTS is the triumph of a family, from its cruelest hardships to freedom and a new beginning.

'THE GROWING UP PROCESS'

The stars of ABC's new What's Happening!! comedy series about three high school students--an inseparable trio of high-spirited black teenagers--are like high school students everywhere...When the bell rings, they run outside.

"It's great doing the show," explains Ernest Thomas, who stars as Raj, "but a three-camera show with readings, rehearsals and taping keeps you inside so much that you do feel like a student when they say you can go. You run, not walk, to the nearest door."

The series, which airs Thursdays (8:30PM), is about the hilarious and unpredictable situations that are a vital part of the growing up process for youth everywhere.

Ernest's character, Roger "Raj" Thomas, is a smart energetic kid who dreams of a writing career, but for now is often sidetracked by some wild scheme that invariably backfires. Raj is aided and abetted in these endeavors by his mischievous buddy, Freddy "Rerun" Stubbs, who is as rotund as he is funny, and by shy, naive Dwayne, a faithful tag-along friend. Ernest is the most serious of the three off-camera as well as on. A native of Gary, Indiana, he is a graduate of that city's Emerson High School. "Karl Malden (star of ABC's Streets of San Francisco) also went there," he says proudly.

After Emerson, he was accepted by the prestigious American Academy of Arts in New York City, studied there for more than a year and then had to take a leave of absence because he got the lead role in the off-Broadway production of Joyce Carol Oates' "The Miracle Place." Not content just to work in a television series, the energetic Thomas has formed a company with Fred and Haywood, Fitzgerald & Co., with which he hopes to publish Fred's poetry and Haywood's cartoons.

Fred, like his character, Rerun, admits that he likes food. What kind? "Lots of it," he says with a grin, "like lots of spaghetti, lots of fish, lots of fruit, lots of vegetables--yes, even lots of junk food." Typically, his What's Happening!! role came by chance. He was auditioning for a guest spot on the Mac Davis series when he heard that auditions for a new show were being held upstairs in the same building. He walked upstairs, tried out for the role and became Rerun.

Haywood is the youngest of the three, but started in show business when he was six years old by getting several TV commercials to do. By 12, he was a full-fledged actor, having appeared in Mel Shavelson's "Mixed Company" with Joe Bologna and Barbara Harris. His other major show business credits include a year on Broadway with Marlo Thomas in "Thieves," a guest stint on the Grady series and parts in the daytime TV series, As the World Turns.

Although well-meaning, the three boys in What's Happening!! have a knack for getting into trouble. And, when they really get out of line, they have to contend with Roger's mother, Mrs. Thomas, portrayed by Mable King. An overworked but caring parent, she can be tough as nails when it comes to disciplining her son, just as she can--almost literally--smother Roger with affection when she's pleased with him.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR GEN. WILLIAM WESTMORELAND,
former Army Chief of Staff

How will the soldier 100 years from now differ from the enlisted man of today?—A.G., Little Rock, Ark.

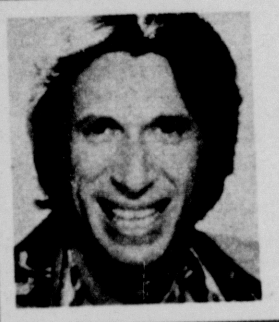

● He will not differ too much physically, except that he will probably be taller and heavier. He will, though, be better educated and more skilled, and he'll be required to man and maintain weapons and machines more technical and sophisticated than today's. In addition, the ratio of officers to enlisted men will be considerably higher than today. The soldier of tomorrow will be better protected, but he will have to undergo the same hardships that soldiers have encountered throughout history.

FOR JANIS SIEGEL,
member of the Manhattan Transfer group

I hear you like to spend your off-hours in an operating room. True or false?—R.C., Chattanooga, Tenn.

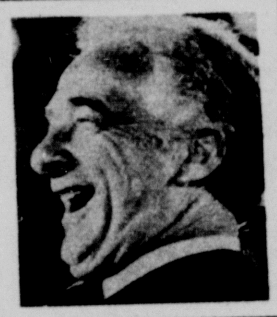

● It's true. I have a friend, a surgeon, who lets me watch, and I love it because I'm a thwarted doctor. My idea of heaven would be to be a singer who moonlights in medicine.

FOR DAVID BRENNER, comedian

Got any new plans for your nose?—Jenny Bryant, Latta, S.C.

● So far, my nose has definitely helped my career; it gives me a place to hang my tuxedo while I'm traveling. Nevertheless, I'm planning to do some work on it—wall-to-wall carpeting, then I'll break through the wall and make a kitchenette.

FOR VICTOR BORGE, Danish-born pianist and mime

Did you do crazy things with music when you were a kid? —R.O.B., Medford, Ore.

● Oh sure. When I was about eight or nine, my parents—being very proud of me—would always make me play when they had guests. After a while I got fed up with that, and I started playing tricks: I'd say the next piece is . . . and would mention something by Beethoven or Mozart. I then went on to play one of my own "compositions." And do you know what—very few knew I was fooling.

FOR SALLY FIELD, actress

I heard you say on a talk show that you're shy and introverted. You've got to be putting us on. If this were true, how could you play such extroverted roles as the flying nun?—J.T., Cocoa Beach, Fla.

● I'm not putting you on. I started acting at the ripe old age of two, and it was in my roles that I could be what I couldn't be in real life. In this make-believe world I felt good. Out of it, I didn't. It's still that way. I live a schizo life, either all-actress or all-homebody.

FOR REP. SHIRLEY CHISHOLM (D.-N.Y.)

● It's difficult to fight for issues of human justice and equality and have to make concessions because of the unwillingness of others who are motivated by the politics of expediency. But at the same time, I know that compromise is a necessary tool that sometimes must be used to achieve my goals. Not everyone shares the same opinions or approaches problems in the same way.

Someone told me you wear gloves to bed. Why?—J.R., Grand Forks, N.D.

● Because I have to. My hobby is ceramics, which has a skin-drying tendency. As my hands often appear in TV closeups, I don't want them to look old and withered. What I do after I've finished a work session is oil and grease my hands and fingers, going right under the nails. If I didn t wear gloves, all that stuff would rub off on the sheets.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Is it true those Russian-exiled dancers, Rudolf Nureyev and Mikhail Baryshnikov, are sworn enemies?—Mary Oberton, Washington, D.C.

● No. While they're not what you'd call inseparable, one doesn't walk out when the other enters the room. In fact, the night the rumor broke that the two were feuding, a FAMILY WEEKLY reporter saw them together at New York's Russian Tea Room. There is, however, a lack of warmth between Nureyev (right) and Natalia Makarova. (All three are products of the famed Kirov Ballet.)

FOR GENE SARAZEN, member of golf's Hall of Fame

What got you interested in golf?—R.M., Dubuque, Iowa

● As a teen-ager I worked in the pro shop of the Brooklawn Country Club in Bridgeport, Conn. I practiced before the shop opened, and then again after it closed. One day a club member hired me to play a round. I shot my first sub-par round (69), and from then on, all the members spoke about the "kid" in the shop. It made life miserable for the pro, and I had to leave. But the next time I was in Bridgeport, I was the U.S. Open Champion.

PRO AND CON

Is There Too Much Violence On Television?

PRO Herbert Schlosser, President, NBC

No. Violence has troubled our society for a long time and represents one of the more difficult problems facing us, and we are acting to deal with the depiction of that violence. The networks maintain Broadcast Standards Departments responsible for taste and propriety. Programs are considered in the light of their context, meaning and purpose. Merely counting violent incidents in a program, without regard to context, does not provide a meaningful measure of their significance or their effect on viewers. It is unfortunate that body-count approach has become fashionable because it can mislead rather than enlighten.

CON Dr. George Gerbner, Dean, Annenberg School of Communications, University of Pennsylvania

Yes. The evidence is convincing that cheap and stereotyped violence on American television is the highest in the world and has not changed much, especially late-evening and children's programming. It is prejudicial to women, older people and minority-group characters as they tend to be portrayed as victims. The consequence of heavy exposure to this diet is acceptance of violence as a ready solution to problems. If we don't want our children to grow up mean and terrorized by vivid images of meanness around them, we need to change the amount and pattern of violence on television.

Finally, Vantage Longs.

The first long cigarette to bring good taste to low-tar smoking.

Like a lot of smokers you may like the idea of a longer cigarette. You may also want low tar.
But longer cigarettes usually have more tar.
Well, Vantage just wouldn't go along with that.
So we worked. Until we could perfect a longer cigarette with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar.
Not the lowest long cigarette you can find. But very possibly the lowest that you will enjoy.
New Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.
That's the Vantage point. And that's the point of Vantage Longs. Never before has there been a long cigarette quite like it.
Try a pack today and see if you go along with us.

STALLONE FIGHTS HIS WAY TO THE TOP

It sounds corny and sentimental: a down-and-out loser destined to fail makes it to the Big Time. But that's the story of the hit movie Rocky—and of its star and writer.

By Carol Botwin

"I asked myself a long time ago, what is it like to really make it? Do you go, Yeah! I made it! and kiss every mirror you pass, or do you become baffled and sit back and watch yourself? Well, I'm sitting back and trying to get some perspective on what's going on."

Sylvester Stallone, who has just made it big as star and writer of the new hit movie Rocky, is talking in the living room of his manager's apartment. Even now it's hard to believe how it all happened. "I was getting nervous," he recalls. "I was pushing thirty. It was now or never. I thought desperately, I need a vehicle." In the unbelievably short time of three-and-a-half days he wrote Rocky, the story of a down-and-out fighter who gets one final chance to make it through a fluky opportunity to fight the world champion. The script ended up in the offices of producers Robert Chartoff and Irwin Winkler. They liked it. So did United Artists. But nobody wanted the unknown Sylvester Stallone to play the part of Rocky. They searched, instead, for "bankable" big names like Burt Reynolds and James Caan. Sylvester stubbornly held on. At last he convinced everybody, and the part was his.

"Then I panicked," he remembers. "Okay, Sly, I said to myself. You've got it, but what if you can't do it? On the day the movie started I was sitting in a trailer at 4:00 A.M. in Philadelphia. I couldn't move. The technicians kept calling me from outside. Finally, I psyched myself. I got up, passed a mirror and looked at myself in all the makeup and thought, all right, Rocky, you can do it. I kicked open the door and never felt any doubt after that."

He believes Rocky is a success because it is an old-fashioned story about a hero who triumphs. "The public is sick of weirdos," he says passionately. "A man who works hard all week and wants to go to the movies with his family is subjected to brutality, murder, a bombardment of foul language. You have every conceivable sicko on screen. The public wants something, someone to believe in. And that's what I'm going to give them in the future—optimistic films."

But at this time in his life he is trying to adjust to the overwhelming critical acclaim that began even before the film opened—the rush of interviews, the scripts with starring parts suddenly being sent to him, the idea of having lots of money for the first time.

At the moment, however, Sylvester appears remarkably relaxed. His head is against the back of his chair. His legs are stretched out, crossed at the ankles. A glass of wine stands within easy reach of his large, chunky hands.

In repose, the face of Sylvester Stallone is an unlikely one for a star: too much jaw, hangdog eyes, lips that curl downward. The most remarkable thing about his appearance is his shoes, which come to vicious stiletto-pointed tips. They are don't-mess-with-me-or-I'll-kick-you shoes. The face and the shoes are street-guy tough, but Sylvester, as he talks, is not.

He ignores the phone that constantly rings, as well as the hot lights put up by the photographer, who silently stalks him, and explains that it is Sylvester the author I am looking at, not Sylvester the actor.

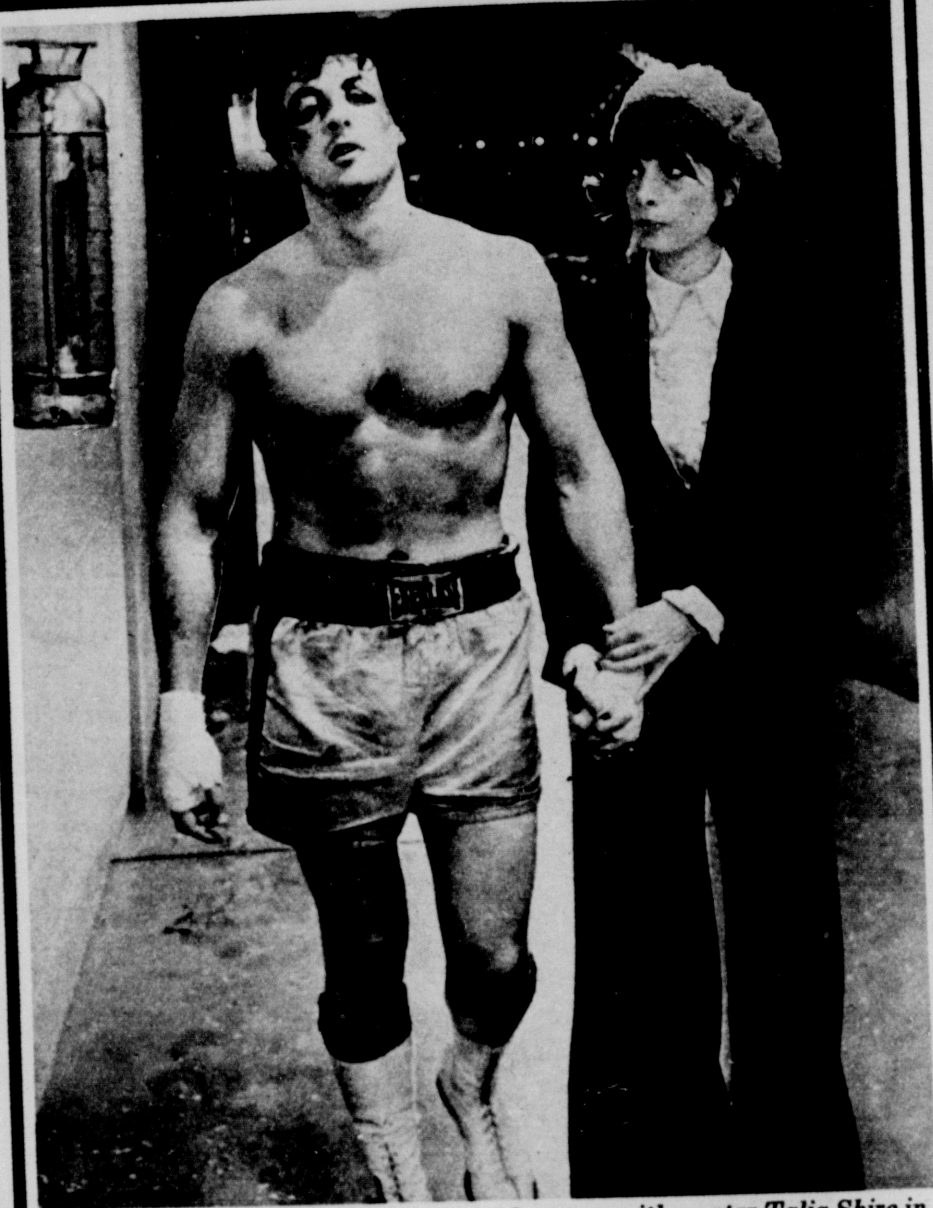

"Me, the writer, I am unaggressive, curious, very relaxed. If you were interviewing me the actor, however, I would be doing handsprings, cartwheels, showing you my tap dancing—anything to catch your attention. It's a habit I picked up auditioning for producers. They always ask, 'Tell me a little about yourself,' and then give you one minute. So you tell them you've been lost in a blizzard in the Alps, married 37 women—anything that will get you through that wall of indifference."

Sylvester admits that he was rarely successful in getting through to producers in the past, and success did not come easily. In fact, that it came at all is extraordinary.

Born 30 years ago in New York's Hell's Kitchen to an Italian immigrant father and an ex-showgirl mother, Sylvester was trouble from the start. By the age of two he was diagnosed as hyperkinetic. "I thought nothing of taking a crayon and going over someone's entire living-room wall with it or completely dismantling a piano. I was lost in fantasies, fantasies, fantasies."

When he was five, the Stallone family moved first to Maryland, then to Philadelphia, where Sylvester spent the rest of his childhood and adolescence being a cutup in class, a bully after class, getting thrown out of one school after another and visiting a series of psychiatrists. "I was ostracized. They called me crazy, and I began to believe it. I felt nobody understood me. My father didn't. My hyperness drove him crazy. He punished me severely for things that were really out of my control.

"But my mother," he says with admiration and warmth, "she was wonderful. She supported me no matter what I did. She is one of the world's great eccentrics herself and was always trying out new things. She allowed me to feel I could fail and still go on."

At 19 Sylvester decided he had to do something with himself. "I knew I wasn't crazy, but I also knew something was wrong. I decided maybe it was what I was putting into my body. I started taking vitamins, and it helped." To this day, Sylvester swigs down a mind-boggling array of vitamin supplements.

Straightening out his life also included going to college. He enrolled at the University of Miami but found that still another disastrous experience. He dropped out and came to New York to try his luck as an actor, but the closest he got to an active role in the theater was a job as an usher at a movie house. He did come away from that job, though, with Sasha, a girl friend who believed in him, an actress who was working as an usherette. She is now his wife.

Out of desperation Sylvester started to write. The words came easily, something he attributes—quite seriously—to having been a writer in a previous existence. "It's going to sound crazy in print," he admits, "but I do believe I have had other lives. I think I was guillotined during the French Revolution. When I see a movie about a person being guillotined, I have the strangest feeling I know what it was like."

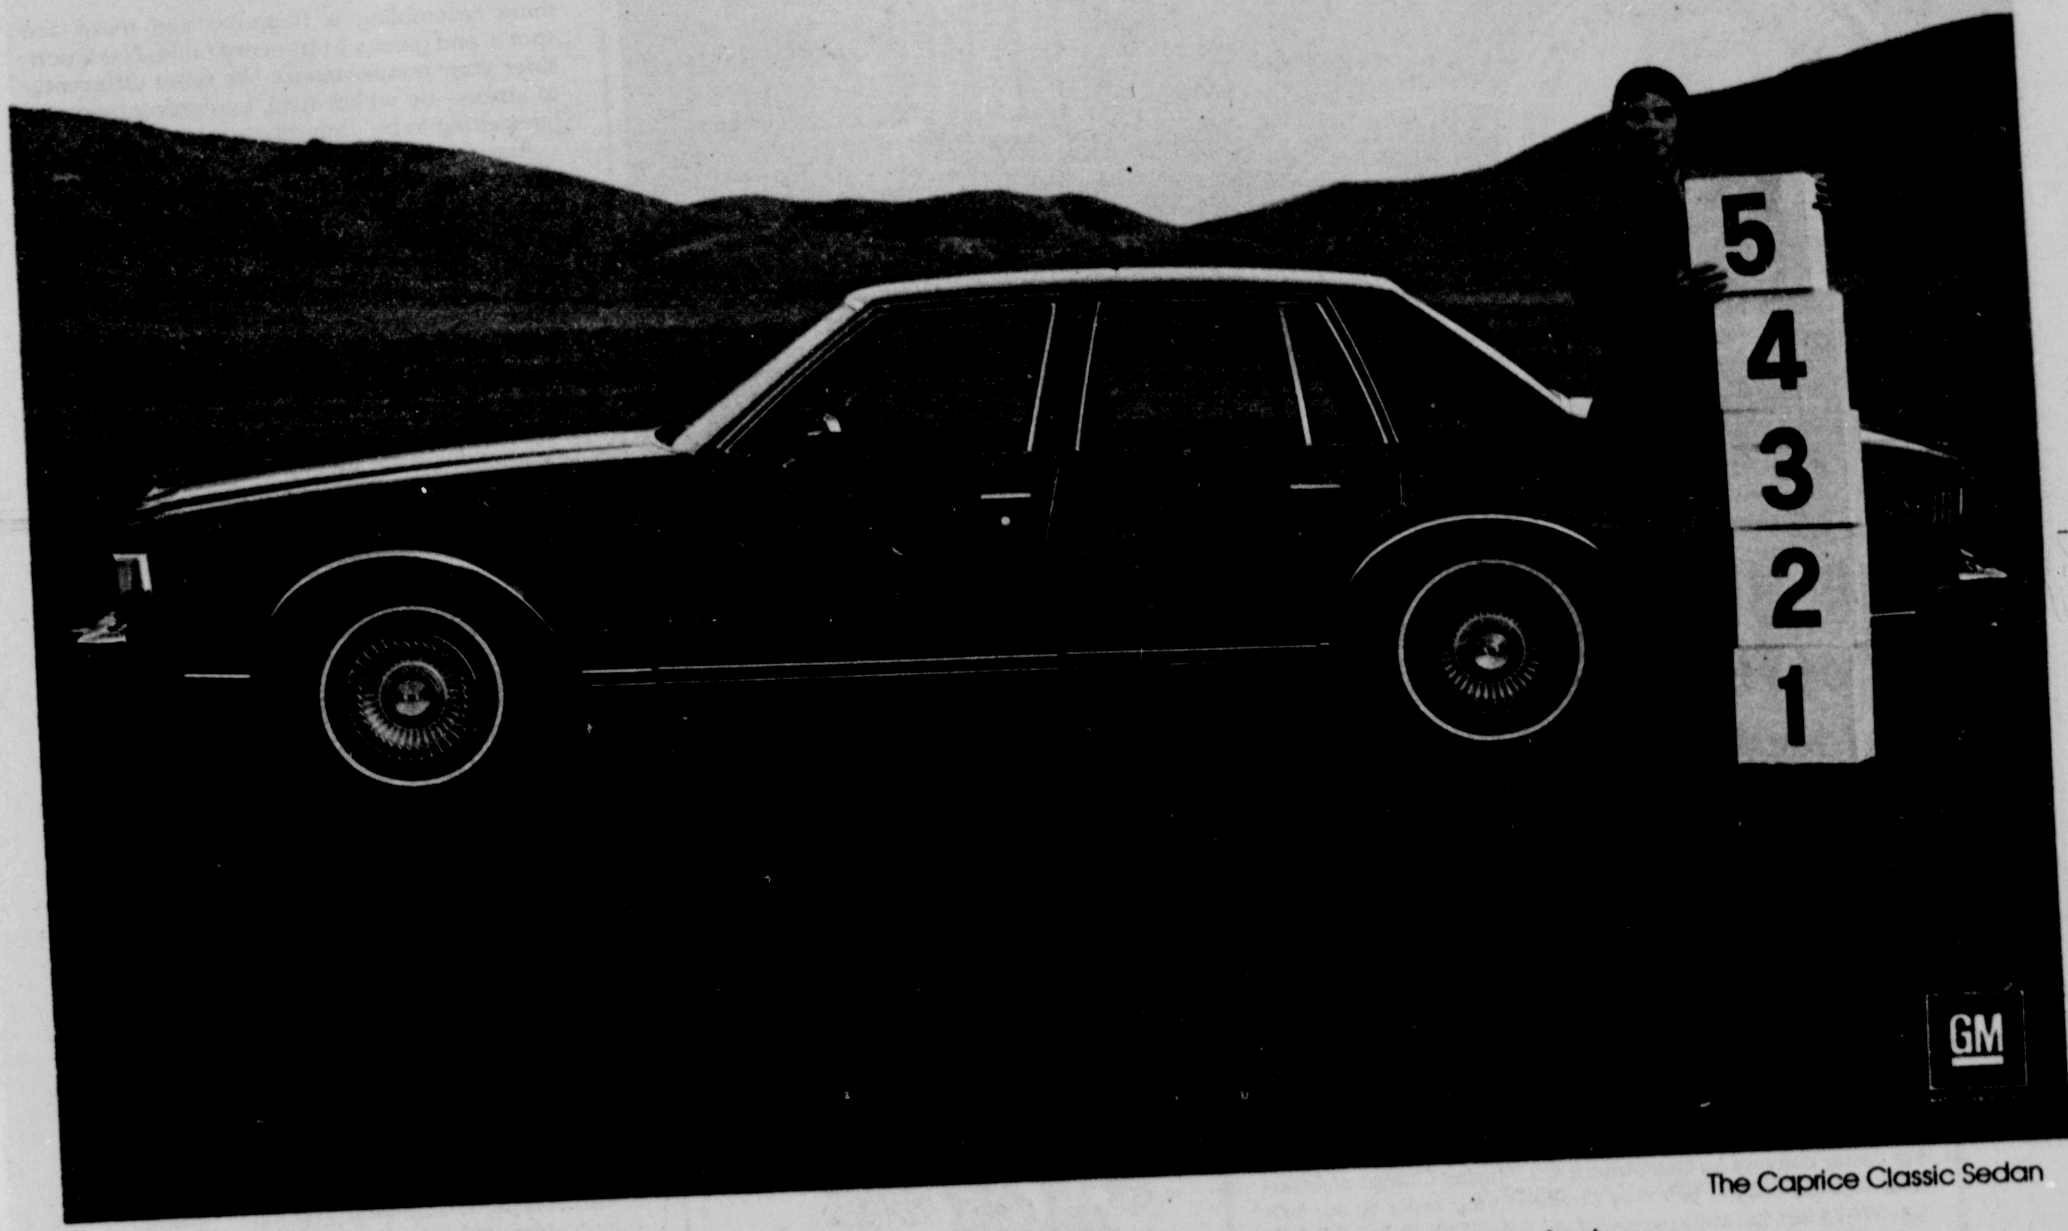

"Sly," as he is called by friends, is also a passionate believer in astrology. "My kid is an astro-baby. My wife and I wanted our child born under a specific sign. We went to the doctor and told him it had to be born within the hour—the constellations were about to change. He said, 'Impossible. She won't be ready for at least 12 hours.' But he didn't know my wife. The baby was born in 32 minutes flat. Fantastic!"

It was through astrology, too, that his mother predicted his success as a writer. Her prediction was, in part, what kept him behind the typewriter while his wife worked to keep them eating.

And what does he predict for himself? "I'd like to be able to help other writers and actors get started. I want to take long shots and never forget where I came from. That's why I keep pictures of myself from three or four years ago next to my bathroom mirror. I look at them every day and remind myself what a miracle this all has been."

According to a U.S. Government publication:

The New Chevrolet has 5 more cubic feet of room inside than our nearest sales competitor's older style full-size cars.

The Caprice Classic Sedan

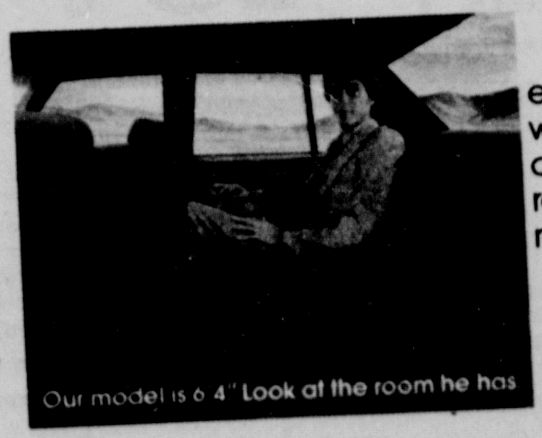

Five cubic feet.

That's how much more passenger room there is inside The New Chevrolet than there is inside this year's older-style full-size cars of Chevy's nearest sales competitor.

Five cubic feet.

And you don't have to take our word for it.

That's based on U.S. Government estimates of vehicle interior size, as reported in the 1977 EPA Guide for New Car Buyers. You can get a copy at any new car showroom.

It's not Grand Canyon, but it's a sizeable difference. Enough, we hope, to cause you to wonder why anybody would need that extra "size" on the outside of the car when you can get so much room and comfort inside the crisp, contemporary, trend-setting 1977 Chevrolet.

EXERCISE FOR FUN

Certain physical characteristics reveal not only which sports you'll do well in and like the best but also a good deal about how you approach life.

By George Sheehan, M.D.

The main problem with exercising is how to make it fun. So before you begin any program —and as little as thirty minutes four times a week can convert you from a lounge lizard to an energetic athlete—first ask yourself what you'll enjoy. Begin by analyzing your body type. Function follows structure, and each of us is built to do some things better than others. Our physiques range from eggshape to something resembling a flagpole, and there are sports and games to fit every build. Next, consider your temperament. We react differently to stress—by withdrawal, by confrontation or by seeking to be with others.

Dr. George Sheehan

Assessing one's suitability for a particular physical activity through analysis of body type and temperament is called constitutional psychology. It is a controversial concept, and there are certainly exceptions to the guidelines set forth below. Nevertheless, from a practical standpoint the concept can make you think about what type of person you are and what exercise program you'll be happy with.

The best differentiation of body types is based on the three layers of the human embryo: endoderm, mesoderm and ectoderm. Endomorphs (morph means shape) have large stomachs and intestines. They like to eat, drink and socialize and tend to be short on strength and endurance. Because of their round build, endomorphs are best suited for activities that don't require working against gravity—cycling, skiing, walking, running, tennis, golf and yoga, for example. Endomorphs, as a rule, don't like solitary pursuits. They need company. Finally, although endomorphs usually are not natural athletes, they have one physical advantage—they float well and can swim almost indefinitely.

Mesomorphs are strong and powerful people with heavy muscles and well-developed hearts and circulatory systems. Often they are natural athletes, and they prefer competitive sports, particularly those which require they go one-on-one with an opponent. As courageous individuals who love excitement and action, they want to hit something or somebody. Hence, they are happy with contact sports, basketball, martial arts, wrestling and boxing, and with hitting games such as squash and handball. They can be induced to jog, cycle or ski if competition is added or if they can add the challenge of personal "goals."

Ectomorphs tend to be thin and fragile with a low threshold for pain. They dislike going head-to-head and avoid physical contact. They shun schedules and regular activities (like tennis doubles every Wednesday night). The ectomorph is the ideal lonely jogger, long-distance runner, skier and walker.

Which group do you belong to? Which physical activity is right for you? Remember, the important thing is to have fun, and fitness will take care of itself.

George Sheehan, a dedicated runner and sports physician, has for 15 years treated athletes and dealt with fitness programs. He is the author of books on fitness and is a columnist for World Tennis magazine.

Visit ANCIENT EGYPT for 10 days free as a guest of TIME LIFE BOOKS

One of the three coffins of King Tutankhamen was made with 242 pounds of solid gold.

Let TIME-LIFE BOOKS take you beyond the rigid death masks, the tombs, the unsmiling portraits that Ancient Egypt presents to history. Meet the Egyptians as they really were at the height of their splendor: a gay, romantic people who thought of death as only a door to another, equally happy life.

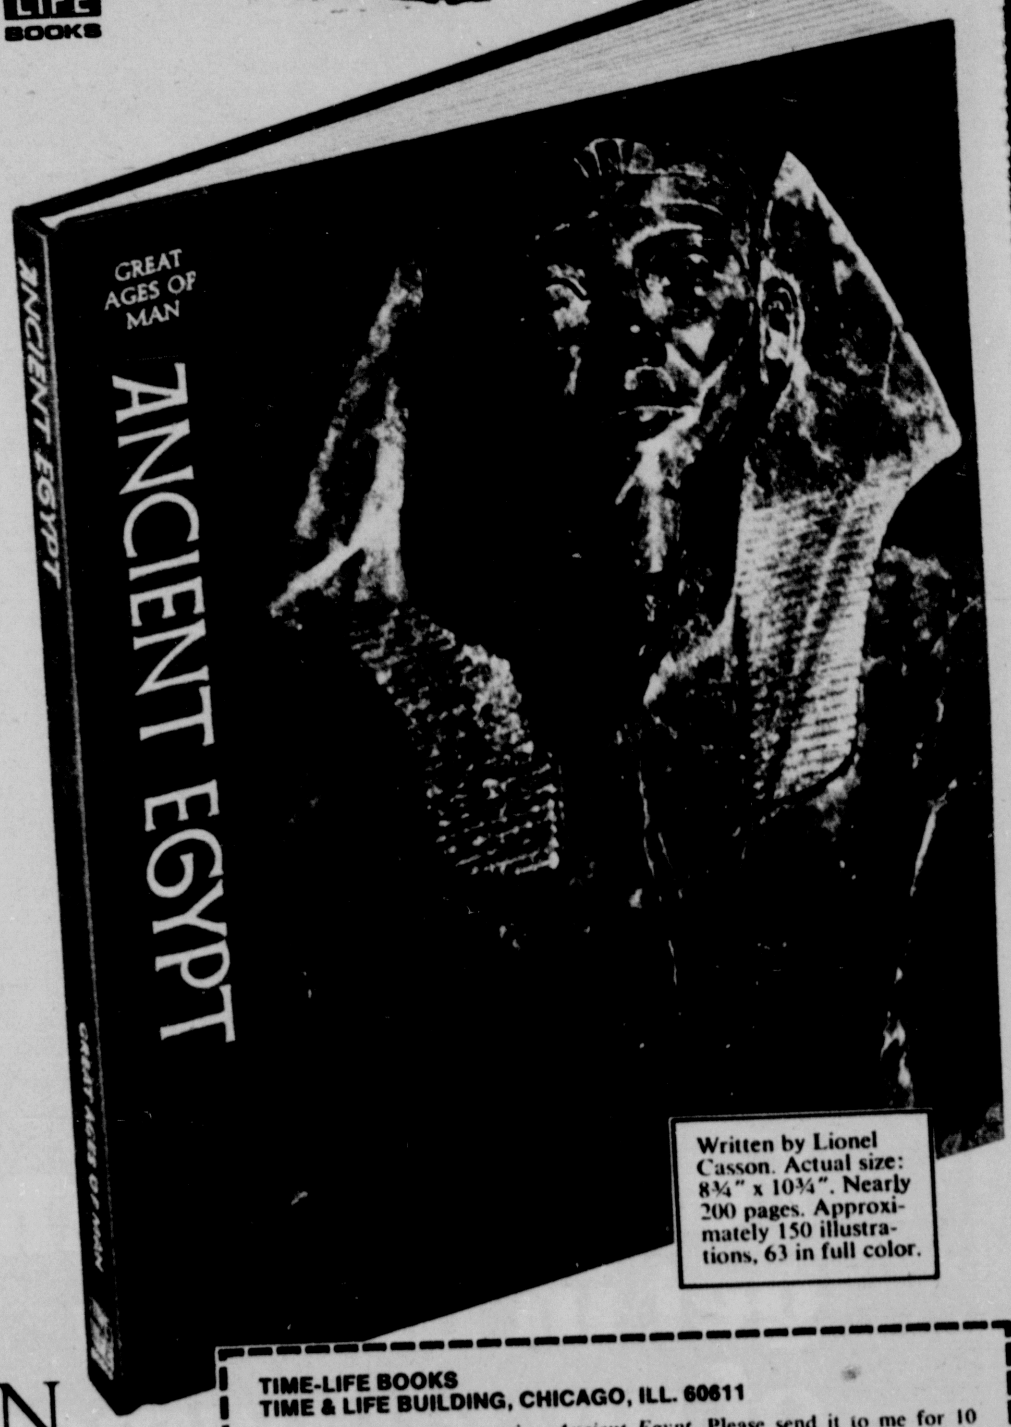

Start with The Great Pyramid of Gizeh, built of stone blocks weighing up to 15 tons apiece, fitted together as precisely as a necklace clasp. Learn how workmen sealed it off so effectively (from the inside) it took looters 400 years to gain entrance. Gaze at the statue of beautiful Queen Nefertiti . . . and see the 3,000-year-old mummified head of Ramses II. (Now in a Cairo museum, Ramses arrived there after suffering the indignity of being taxed as dried fish by a befuddled customs inspector.)

The world's first united nation

The Egyptians wrote lyric poetry to lost loves; their doctors used sutures; they endured history's first recorded labor strike – and, blessed with a genius for organization, they formed the world's first united nation more than 3,000 years before Christ. In Ancient Egypt, Lionel Casson, Professor of Classics at New York University, gives you an intimate view of a people whose span of accomplishment has few rivals in human history.

The GREAT AGES OF MAN Series

Ancient Egypt is your introductory volume in GREAT AGES OF MAN—a series brought to you by the editors of TIME-LIFE BOOKS. In text and photographs, each volume presents one of the high points of human history. Ancient Egypt is typical of the series: clothbound, 8¾" x 10¾", it contains nearly 200 pages, with approximately 150 colorful illustrations, maps and photographs. Thanks to our large print orders, you pay only $6.95 plus shipping and handling. And with your purchase of the first volume, you receive a 5,200-word introduction to the GREAT AGES OF MAN, entitled "What Man Has Built," by Jacques Barzun, distinguished scholar and critic. Le Hot Facial

For dry, winter skin try this before bedtime: warm up a spoonful of petroleum jelly by resting a teaspoon over a bowl of very hot water or letting underside of spoon touch the water. Meanwhile, remove makeup. Next, massage the warm jelly into the face and throat. Place face in a hot, moist towel for a few minutes. Then, tissue off the excess jelly. Enough lubricant will remain to protect the skin from moisture loss and to give it a soft, smooth feeling.

Tooth Flash!

Here's an update from the American Dental Association on how you and your children should brush for the removal of plaque, a primary cause of tooth decay and gum disease.

Place toothbrush on your teeth with the bristle tips against the gum line. Move back and forth with very short strokes, brushing the gums as well as outer surface of upper and lower teeth. Use the same method on inside surface of your teeth.

To clean the four upper and lower front teeth, however, tilt the brush vertically, using several gentle up-an-down strokes with the "toe" (front part) of brush, with bristles against the teeth and gum tissue.

Rx Drug Safety

Here are some good pointers from the F.D.A. on the use and storing of drugs: never take drugs in combination or along with alcohol without your doctor's approval . . . Use pill boxes only for temporary storage, as pills can lose or gain strength . . . Never carry nitroglycerin in a pill box; keep in original container, designed to maintain pills' potency . . . Rx A drug is prescribed for you alone, never meant to be shared . . . It's a good idea to discard all leftover prescription drugs. Your Body— The Magnificent Machine

Do you know that our bodies are more efficient than computers? . . . The human heart pumps blood through 70,000 miles of blood vessels and back in less than a minute . . . The nose cleans, humidifies and warms about 500 cubic feet of air for the lungs daily . . . Many bones, such as thigh bones, are tubular, m k- ing them stronger than a solid rod of steel. Some more fascinating facts? Your palms and soles contain the richest supply of sweat glands but very few oil glands—which is why they get wrinkled when you stay in water too long. And those "goose bumps" you get on a cold day are a carry-over from our "furry" days, when skin muscles tightened so that hair would stand on end for better insulation and protection.

For cold & flu relief nothing's changed:

Rest, Fluids, Bayer Aspirin.

Why Winning A Marriage Fight Means You Lose

When Bill and Ellen's car stalls in the middle of a busy highway, Ellen says, "See, I keep telling you the car needs a check-up." And in Ralph's and Ruth's kitchen, Ruth is rushing to complete dinner before guests arrive. The salad bowl slips from her hand, smashes on the floor. Ralph bursts out, "I told you, you didn't allow enough time to get ready." Both Ellen and Ralph feel they've "won." Other couples will store up grudges and "win" their fights by suddenly hauling out their lists and using them as weapons.

When you push your mate to a You-Lose, I-Win position, your marriage loses. Consequently, neither husband nor wife really "wins" says marriage counselor Marcia Lasswell who, with Norman M. Lobsenz, has written No-Fault Marriage, The New Technique of Self-Counselling and What It Can Help You Do (Doubleday, 1976). To really win a marital fight, you both must abandon the idea of personal victory and concentrate on what exactly you're fighting about and how it can be resolved. A phrase like "Prove it!" in the midst of an argument inflames controversy rather than aims at a solution. Be especially careful of turning a small disagreement into a crisis say Lobsenz and Lasswell. For example, if you're arguing about where to go on a Saturday evening, stick to the point. Don't drag in serious differences about money by accusing your spouse of being unwilling to spend a few extra dollars for the night's entertainment. The authors conclude, "Ultimately the basic reason that 'winning' does not work is that it reduces marriage to a power struggle. . . . A couple can opt for power and seek to 'win.' Or they can opt for love and seek to reach accord."

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Most people have neurotic tendencies.
2. Neurotics are relatively happy.
3. The person who always feels sorry for himself, feels abused by others and claims no one appreciates or understands him has an excellent chance of developing a full-blown neurosis.
4. Never ask a neurotic person how he feels—he's liable to tell you.
5. It's easy for a person to determine the extent to which he is neurotic or well adjusted.
6. The United States is the least neurotic nation.

ANSWERS

1. True. As one leading psychiatrist has observed: it is the rare person who does not have some tendencies which result in mental and emotional conflicts; however, only in some people do they develop into neurosis. Truly neurotic people are described as being constantly in conflict with their environment, fighting their emotional battles on two fronts: inside, as visible in their physical symptoms and personality difficulties; and outside, in their quarrels and obstinacy.

2. False. In his pen portrait of the typical neurotic, Professor H. J. Eysenck, Director of the Psychological Laboratories at The University of London, describes him with such adjectives as "moody," "touchy" and "restless."

3. True. Studies show that many people develop elaborate neuroses based on feelings of abuse and claims derived from these feelings. ("I don't know why I should have to take all that abuse from anybody.") Such people make a career of misconstruing remarks and imagining slights and insults.

4. True. In a study conducted by British and American specialists, a questionnaire concerning the number of neurotic symptoms experienced during one week was answered by 100 known neurotics and 100 normals. Findings: complaints were reported more frequently in neurotics than normals.

5. True. Psychologist Gardner Murphy suggests: "A well-adjusted personality is one which utilizes effectively and without conflict all that it possesses." In other words, the person with a well-adjusted personality doesn't waste energies on self-doubts and inner conflicts but applies whatever assets he does have to his everyday life. The extent to which he is capable of doing this will provide him with an accurate index of his adjustment.

6. False. A study of national differences in neurosis, sponsored by Britain's Social Science Research Council, showed the nation with the highest incidence of neurosis to be Austria; the least neurotic, Ireland, with the U.S. roughly in middle place.

Observations™

Never on Sunday? Our offer of $25 U.S. Savings Bonds for verified examples of silly government rules is producing no end of funny—and not so funny—letters. And once in a while there's evidence that government is overcoming its silliness. A letter from James L. Morgan of Winchester, Virginia, provides an example. He reported that he could buy beer and soft drinks on Sundays in his town, but he couldn't buy ice there. If he wanted ice for his drinks, he had to purchase it outside city limits. Well, in the November election, Winchester repealed its silly rule. Quite a victory for the voters.

It's taxing. If you work in New York City but live elsewhere, one tax form you must file is called a "certificate of nonresidence." And just to avoid any confusion, the form includes the following:

"Nonresident individual.—A nonresident individual means an individual who is not a resident."

o

A word about supply. In a recent nationwide survey, 51 percent of those polled favored an end to price controls on U.S. oil and natural gas. Only 27 percent backed continued regulation. Which leads us to believe that most Americans know the importance of assured supply. And we would add: they also know the economy can tolerate reasonably higher prices better than a shortage of basic energy supplies.

o

A quote we like. "The best things and best people rise out of their separateness; I'm against a homogenized society because I want the cream to rise." Robert Frost.

o

Endeavour. That was the name of the ship on which Captain James Cook set out in 1768 to go "as far as it was possible for man to go." His travels took him to King George's Island (now Tahiti) where he bartered with the natives and observed a strange new art form: tattoos. His adventures are the third episode of Ten Who Dared, the "Mobil Showcase" documentary series on great explorers. Check your local TV listings for time and station.

MMM...THREE EASY STEPS TO HOMEMADE BREAD

Pro and beginner will find breadmaking rewarding with this advice from Food Editor Marilyn Hansen. "An easy way to get started," she says, "is to make a yeast batter bread—there's no kneading with this method!"

BASIC BATTER BREAD

- 1 cup warm water (105° to 115° F.)
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- 1 cup warm milk
- 2 tablespoons softened margarine
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 4½-5 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- ¼ cup very hot tap water (125° to 135° F.)
- 1 cup creamed cottage cheese (at room temperature)
- 1 egg (at room temperature)

1. Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved.
2. Add milk, margarine, sugar and salt. Beat in 3 cups flour until well blended, using large spoon. Beat vigorously for 2 minutes; scrape side of bowl.
3. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 40 minutes.
4. Stir down dough. With greased hands shape into balls and place into 6 greased 10-oz. deep-pie dishes or place in 4 greased 12-oz. casseroles.*
5. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until double in bulk, about 35 minutes.
6. Just before rising time is up, preheat oven to 375° F. Beat egg white and water together. Carefully brush loaves with egg mixture. Bake for 35 to 40 minutes or until tops are golden brown and sound hollow when rapped with knuckles. Remove from pans immediately and cool on wire rack.

Makes 4 to 6 individual loaves

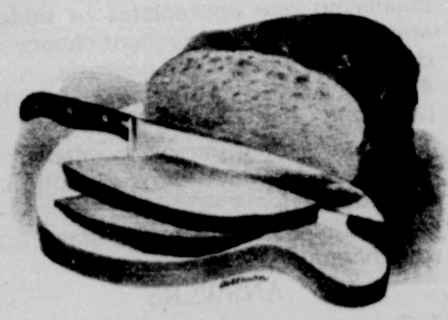

*Or place dough in 2-qt. straight-sided casserole. Let rise as in step 5 and bake at 375° F. 45 to 55 minutes.

DILLY CASSEROLE BREAD

- 2-2¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 2 teaspoons dill seed
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 pkg. active dry yeast
- 1 tablespoon softened margarine

1. In large bowl, thoroughly mix ¼ cup flour, sugar, salt, instant minced onion, dill seed, baking soda and undissolved active dry yeast. Add softened margarine.
2. Gradually add very hot tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add cottage cheese, egg and ½ cup flour or enough flour to make a thick batter.
3. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter.
4. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour and 15 minutes.
5. Stir batter down. Turn into a greased 1½-qt. casserole. Cover; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 50 minutes.
6. Just before rising time is up, preheat oven to 350° F. Bake for 30 to 40 minutes or until top is golden brown and surface sounds hollow when rapped with knuckles. Turn out of pan immediately and cool on wire rack.

Makes 1 loaf

WHEAT GERM CASSEROLE BREAD

- 2¾-3¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ½ cup wheat germ
- 2 pkgs. active dry yeast
- 2 tablespoons softened margarine
- 1½ cups very hot tap water
- 2 tablespoons molasses (at room temperature)

1. In a large bowl, thoroughly mix 1 cup flour, salt, wheat germ and undissolved active dry yeast. Add margarine.

What is yeast?

Yeast is a plant in the fungus family. It exists in air and soil. Like other fungi, yeast plants require air, moisture and sugar or starch to grow.

Can Bakers' and Brewers' yeast be used interchangeably?

No. Brewers' yeast by itself will not raise bread dough. Bakers' yeast is composed of yeast strains selected for flavor and the superior ability to produce carbon dioxide.

Dr. David Hartman: "Blindness put my life into focus"

"Everyone is handicapped in some way. My blindness put my life into focus," says Dr. David Hartman, the first blind person to graduate from an American medical school. Rejected by nine schools before being accepted at Temple University (Pa.), David stayed in the top fifth of his class from his first semester. Volunteers taped medical textbooks (700 hours of them) and exams. Instead of identifying slides from a microscope, David recognized them from an oral description. He performed especially well in anatomical dissections because "a lot of surgery is done by touch." After his internship and residency, Dr. Hartman will specialize in psychiatry and rehabilitative medicine. In psychiatry, Hartman feels his blindness may turn out to be an asset. "Many people feel nervous when a psychiatrist looks at them, as if somehow he has inside information which exposes them. My patients might feel more comfortable."

What Really Makes A Kid "Accident-Prone"?

"Accident-proneness" in children is directly related to the amount of stressful change in their lives, reports a University of Washington research team. In a five-month survey of 103 seventh-grade boys, those who had experienced a high number of such events as suspension from school or a serious illness within the previous year had more than twice as many accidents as those with low life-change patterns. On the other hand, no relationship was demonstrated between high risk-taking behavior and the number of accidents reported.

He's enrolled in the school's enrichment program for gifted children, so University officials were forced to admit he can be legally on the ballot.

If Your Head Needs Help

Do you know that the words "psychotherapist," "psychoanalyst" and "counselor" are not defined by law? Most of these people are legitimate professionals, and may even have medical degrees, but in most states just about anybody can set up shop under one of these classifications with no special training or qualifications. A person called a "psychologist" or "psychiatrist" must meet professional requirements: a psychologist holds a doctorate and has passed state licensing boards; a psychiatrist is a medical doctor who has also met specialty standards and passed state licensing boards. This and other helpful information come from the New York Consultation and Referral Service Inc., a mental-health service staffed by qualified psychiatrists and psychologists. Questions? Write to the organization at 130 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

How To Help Improve Children's Television

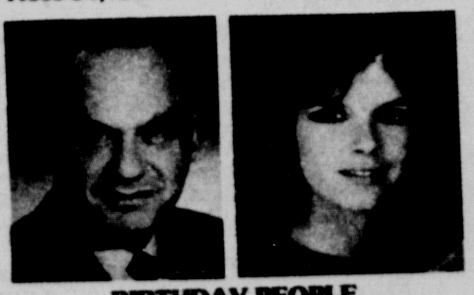

As a result of growing concern by parents and professionals over the effects of television on youngsters, Action for Children's Television, a group made up of parents and educators, makes these suggestions:

- Talk about TV with your child. Find out what programs, if any, upset him. Discuss ways TV characters could solve problems without violence.
- Look at television with your child. Watch the kind of TV behavior your child tries to imitate. Be sure to point out TV characters who care about others and TV women and men who are competent in a variety of jobs.
- Choose programs with your child. Try to improve children's TV by writing a letter to a local station or a television network. Specify the number of shows your child can watch. And don't hesitate to turn off the set.

You Can Test Your Dog's Intelligence

Now there's a 10-part dog intelligence test developed and published by school psychologist Cathy Coon, who once thought her dog was the dumbest in the world. Her three-year study of more than 100 dogs showed that most owners had no accurate idea of the intelligence of their pets. On a scale of 0-10 —Very Dumb to Brilliant—the mean test score is 5.75. Purebred hounds scored highest, with a 7.63 average. Toy poodles were worst, with 4.78. Obedience-school dogs were no better than unschooled dogs. Mixed breeds were about as smart as pure breeds. Neither male nor female dogs were significantly smarter. "The Dog Intelligence Test Manual," complete with test, scoresheet and findings, sells for $3 at pet shops and department stores.

Couple uses sons to rob; a successful family affair

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A couple posing as a wealthy family on vacation is going around the country using their young sons, aged 12 and 16, to steal thousands daily from clothing and jewelry stores, police say.

The boys have been caught many times but are great actors who turn on the tears and are released after their parents promise to counsel them, according to Los Angeles police investigator Jerry Osterholt.

One clothing chain, Casual Corners, has been hit by the family 19 times over the past two years in a number of states, Osterholt said.

Earlier this month, the 12-year-old pocketed $60,000 in diamonds from a suburban Woodland Hills jewelry store and was caught, Osterholt said. His brother was caught stealing from a nearby store, and the whole family was carted off to the police station.

The boys told police they were bored and decided to see who could steal the most that day. They said they hadn't told their parents, who expressed horror and promised to discipline the boys. The whole family was then released just as they have been in similar incidents over the past two years, Osterholt said.

"God knows how many times they have been caught, come up with the same line and been released," said Osterholt. "They've had two years to perfect their story in snowing the police."

"They give the appearance of being a wealthy family," Osterholt said. "Nothing but the finest clothes, jewelry. They stay in the best hotels. They go first cabin all the way."

"These kids are learning crime does pay, and very handsomely," Osterholt said. "They eat out all the time, are always in hotels. They've got to be spending $200 a day just to live."

They were caught and released in Hawaii the day before the arrest in Woodland Hills and were arrested and set free here last year about this time, Osterholt said.

The family claims to be from Atlantic City, N.J., but all the specifics as to their address and what schools the boys attend are phony, Osterholt said.

Osterholt said the police in each jurisdiction probably figure "these people will never come back again so they counsel them and release them."

The father and one son were actually brought to court in Lombard, Ill., but disappeared during a lunch recess and the local authorities never bothered to put out a warrant on them, Osterholt said.

Prosecution of the parents by any local jurisdiction is difficult because the parents never go in the stores and claim ignorance of the whole thing.

Osterholt said authorities probably can't convict the parents on any one theft but must prove "scheme and design" by bringing in witnesses from all over to show how the parents are involved.

The FBI agreed last week to enter the case for the first time and is asking witnesses to any of the family's past crimes to come forward with their evidence.

The parents give the names Melvin Howard Eisenberg, 41, and Harriett Tropea, 34, Osterholt said.

Jobs, tax bill sent to Congress

READY FOR TRIP

The United States' Space Shuttle, more officially known as Orbiter Vehicle 101 Enterprise, is displayed in Palmdale in September of last year. The stubby, dart-like shuttle is to undertake a 36-mile road trip at a stately 5 to 10 miles an hour today, enroute to an answer to a question: Will it fly? (See story on Page 2.)

Includes the $50 rebate

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter today sent to Congress his $31.2-billion jobs and tax-cut program featuring a $50 tax rebate for most Americans. He declared that the two-year proposal "will set the stage for substantial growth in the years ahead."

The program embodies his campaign pledge to try to put new zip in the economy by cutting unemployment while fending off inflation.

The tax rebate and reduction portions would put $11.4 billion into taxpayers' hands this year and would save individuals and business another $10.6 billion over the next two years.

The jobs part of his two-year program includes $4 billion for additional emergency public works, another 415,000 public service jobs, and various training programs including ones targeted at youth and Vietnam war veterans.

He said he was guided by five principles in creating the program: Continuity and consistency; speed; fairness; effectiveness, and limitation on permanent budget cost.

Here are the elements of the tax portion of Carter's proposal:

—A $50 rebate of 1976 taxes for each taxpayer and dependent up to the limit of the taxpayer's liability. This will cost $8.2 billion.

—A special $1.4-billion provision which will give many working poor families the full $50 per person even if that exceeds their total tax liability.

—A $50 payment to every recipient of Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, or Railroad Retirement. This will cost $1.8 billion.

—A permanent increase in the standard deduction on income tax calculations which would mean that 3.7 million low-income taxpayers and their families would no longer have to pay tax. The standard deduction now ranges from $2,100 to $2,800 for couples and from $1,700 to $2,400 for single persons. Carter would change this to a flat $2,800 for couples and $2,400 for singles.

Once phased in, this proposal would cost about $4 billion per year.

—An alternate tax break for business of either: a tax credit equal to four per cent of Social Security payroll taxes paid by the employer or an additional two per cent credit for new investment in machinery or equipment. This would save business $900 million this year and $2.7 billion in fiscal 1978.

Children, adults stay home during chill crisis

By The Associated Press

Millions of children and adults stayed home today in the East and Midwest — maybe the only place many of them could find warmth as a severe winter chill cut deep into the supply of natural gas. At least 54 persons have died from weather-related causes.

Strict orders for lowering the consumption of gas have done some good, the Federal Power Commission said, but that brought layoffs of at least 1.5 million and closed thousands of businesses and schools.

At least 11 states instituted emergency plans to deal with the fuel shortage and that apparently lessened the chance that fuel problems would lead to cutbacks in home heating. Four major natural gas pipelines said Sunday their supplies were beginning to increase.

More on weather, see P. 3

But to preserve what natural gas was available in the Northeast and Midwest, states ordered nonessential businesses closed. More than one million persons were laid off in Ohio alone.

New York and Pennsylvania were among states that closed some schools.

The natural gas shortage resulted from the brutally cold winter that increased demand. The winter has been so cold that in Detroit, for example, the temperature hasn't been above freezing since Christmas Day — when it was 35.

Many of the victims whose deaths were related to the severe weather of recent days were found in stalled autos and others died of exposure while trying to reach safety.

One woman, Sally Shelton, 37, of Pataskala, Ohio, died after she apparently walked out the front door of her home in her sleep, and four deaths in Georgia were attributed to drownings through thin ice. A man in Fort Wayne, Ind., plunged into a snow bank and suffocated s his wife tried to dig him out.

The forecast for much of the nation called for continued cold for at least the next two days. A storm brought snow and sleet to the South, from central Texas to Georgia, Sundy and early today. Heavy snow fell in Texas and Louisiana.

Snowmobiles were about the only things moving in Canada's Niagara region, police said. They reported snowsqualls and high winds through the night, and the provincial transport ministry advised against road travel anywhere in Ontario province.

Claudine Longet given 30 days jail sentence

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet was sentenced today to 30 days in the Pitkin County Jail for the shooting death of her lover last March.

State District Court Judge E. Lohr also put the 36-year-old French-born entertainer on two years' probation, saying he feared that if no jail term were ordered, it "may undermine the law."

Singer Andy Williams showed no emotion as his former wife and the mother of his three children was sentenced on her conviction for criminally negligent homicide in the accidental shooting of champion skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

Defense attorney Charles V. Weedman said he expected a motion for a new trial to be filed in February. He had previously said that if Miss Longet was given any type of jail term an appeal would be sought.

Miss Longet made a dramatic plea before the court not to send her to jail, if for nothing else because of her children.

Byrd warns Senate of gas bill delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd warned the Senate today that any major effort to amend President Carter's emergency natural gas bill could kill the legislation and aggravate the natural gas crisis.

"I hope senators will restrain their zest for offering what they consider to be long-range solutions" Byrd said in a floor speech as the Senate began its second day of debate on the legislation. "The result can be no bill at all."

The West Virginia Democrat said he feels Americans want Congress promptly to give Carter the authority he seeks to deal with the crisis. "I think the Senate is being tested," he said.

Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., joined Byrd in urging fast action on the bill, and also said he hoped "Congress will not forget the sense of urgency" of the energy crisis once the emergency legislation is passed.

Congressional leaders are predicting the bill will get to the President's desk by the end of the week. Byrd said he would keep the Senate in session late today if it appeared that a final vote could come.

Talking with reporters before today's Senate session, Byrd said that any attempt to amend the bill, other than purely technical amendments, could spell disaster for the legislation.

Over the weekend, Carter said he might go along with a "few amendments" to the bill, including one that might include a requirement that industries go on a four-day work week.

But Byrd emphasized that even amendments supported by the President would "open the door" to major modifications in the bill, including a possible attempt by senators from gas-producing states to push for long-range natural gas deregulation.

The bill would enable Carter to order gas transferred from one pipeline company to another to get it to areas hardest hit by the current spell of abnormally cold weather.

Carter's proposal also would free some gas from federal price controls through July 31.

Carter flew by helicopter to Pittsburgh on Sunday, saying he wanted a first-hand look at the impact the weather is having on employment.

Arctic temperatures that swept across the eastern half of the nation on Friday put more than 1.5 million persons out of work, closed factories and other businesses and forced curtailment of the use of already scarce natural gas.

The Senate, which waived committee hearings on Carter's energy legislation, gets back to work on the bill today after opening debate Friday. Attempts to amend the legislation may produce a "free-for-all on the floor," one Senate aide said.

Although a vote in the Senate was possible by late today, leaders said a vote was more likely Tuesday.

In the House, a "markup" session on the legislation was scheduled for today by the House Commerce Committee to ready the bill for anticipated floor action Tuesday.

Congressional leaders have urged members to restrain from offering amendments.

One amendment, offered by Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., and backed by most senators from gas-producing states, would eliminate the bill's authorization for the President to order connections between interstate and intrastate pipelines.

Two hospitalized in Baldy accidents

One man remains hospitalized today as the result of two separate accidents in the avalanche area of Mt. Baldy on Sunday.

Lisa Oatman, 15, of Thousand Oaks fell and suffered a back injury while playing in the area of the recent avalanche above Movie Slope. She was taken by ambulance after the 10:30 a.m. accident to Doctors Hospital in Montclair where she was treated and released.

At 12:40 p.m., Robert Martinez, 31, of La Puente, slipped on the ice in the same area and suffered a possible fracture of the lower leg. He was taken by ambulance to Doctors Hospital where he was admitted.

Coffey—'old New Dealer'—named Demo chairman

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Bert Coffey, who says he is "perhaps an old New Dealer," is the new California Democratic party chairman, and former U.S. Sen. John Tunney is hinting at a political comeback.

The election Sunday of Coffey, a 60-year-old public relations executive from Richmond, capped a three-day convention which generally was free of the battles of recent California Democratic party conventions.

Coffey immediately apologized to the Chicano Caucus. But in a news conference he expanded on his "bastard" remarks about brewery executive Adolph Coors and state Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia.

Tunney, who lost a narrow race for re-election last November to Republican S.I. Hayakawa, told the convention Saturday that his years in Congress were the happiest of his life, and that he does not rule out the possibility of running for the Senate or some other office in the future.

It was the 42-year-old Tunney's first public appearance since a news conference the morning after Hayakawa's victory, at which time Tunney said he had no desire to ever run for office again.

Coffey defeated 41-year-old San Francisco attorney Fred Furth 705-503 to win a two-year term succeeding Los Angeles attorney Charles Manatt, who stepped down.

Also elected were Mary Warren of Oakland as state vice-chairperson and Alice Travis of Los Angeles as women's chairperson.

Liberal-backed Los Angeles theater owner Bruce Corwin defeated millionaire Orange County developer Richard O'Neill 387-347 for Southern California chairperson. Nancy Pelosi of San Francisco was unopposed for Northern California chairperson.

O'Neill, who was seeking reelection, had become controversial because of his role in financing an Orange County politican machine with Dr. Louis Cella, a Republican convicted last year of tax evasion, forgery and grand theft.

O'Neill's defeat diminished his chances of election as state chairman in 1979, when party rules require that the post be turned over to a Southern Californian.

Coffey, in his campaign, emphasized ties with party leaders of past years. But both Coffey and Furth dismissed suggestions that the election marked a resurgence of Old Guard influence.

Coffey said he wants the formal party organization to play a bigger role in financing candidates, conducting registration drives and repairing the traditional Democratic coalition of labor, liberals, minorities and the poor.

And he suggested that Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who has kept his distance from the state party, might be wise to change.

Barbara Streisand and boyfriend, Jon Peters, hold Golden Globes they won in Los Angeles Saturday for their work on the film "A Star is Born." They shared Globes for producing the film, named best comedy or musical. She won as lyricist for song "Evergreen" and as best actress for "Star." The awards are made by Hollywood Foreign Press Association.

SHARING GLOBES

Streisand captures 3 Globes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbra Streisand, in a possible preview of the Academy Awards Oscar show, is the winner of three of this season's Golden Globe awards for "A Star is Born."

And tears were shed when the award for best actor in a dramatic role was presented posthumously Saturday night to Peter Finch for his portrayal of a mad newscaster in "Network."

The Hollywood Foreign Press Association gives the Globes each year as the season's first major movie awards.

Miss Streisand's "Star" honors included one as co-producer, along with her boyfriend Jon Peters. The movie was named best comedy or musicial film. Along with lyricist Paul Williams, Miss Streisand collected an award for the best song, and she was named best actress in a comedy or musical for her starring role. Her costar, Kris Kristofferson, was named best actor in the same category.

But the film lost the best dramatic picture prize to the lowbudget "Rocky," made by newcomer Sylvester Stallone.

Miss Streisand said her movie was "the most painful, the most difficult, and yet the most rewarding film experience I've had."

Finch's award was accepted by actor Michael Murphy, who thanked the foreign press for "singling out one of the greatest actors of all time." Britishborn Finch died of a heart attack two weeks ago.

Faye Dunaway was named best actress in a drama for her role as a power-hungry rising executive in "Network." The movie also won awards for best screenplay by Paddy Chayefsky and best direction by Sidney Lumet.

Mourners bid farewell

Small funeral set for actor Prinze

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mourning family and friends of Freddie Prinze bid farewell today to the young comedian whose offstage despair drove him to suicide.

A small funeral service was scheduled for 12:30 p.m. PST at the Old North Church at Forest Lawn in Hollywood Hills.

The 22-year-old star of "Chico and the Man" shot himself in the head early Friday just after speaking on the telephone to his estranged wife.

Prinze was faced with the breakup of his marriage, the problems of trying to free himself from a contract with a manager who signed him as a teenager and the concern over an impending trial on charges of driving under the influence of drugs.

James Komack, producer and creator of the "Chico" series, said Prinze radiated charm onstage but was never really comfortable in the real world.

"All that charm, all that love, all that marvelous talent and all that niceness," said Komack. "He couldn't do that offstage. Offstage the world was still uncomfortable for him."

Komack called Prinze "the most gifted entertainer of his time."

"Unfortunately," Komack added, "he had to grow up in the glare of the public spotlight and everything he did while approaching maturity was magnified." Komack hired Prinze for the show when the actor was just 19.

Johnny Carson, host of the "Tonight" show where Komack spotted Prinze, said the young actor "had tremendous talent. The sadness is always magnified when someone so young finds the pressures intolerable."

Said one friend, who asked not to be identified: "People don't seem to be able to understand that you can be talented, good-looking, healthy, that you could have fame and fortune and still have a problem."

Prinze had just been visited by his psychiatrist and secretary on Thursday night, then telephoned his parents and estranged wife, Katherine Cochran, 26. It was after speaking to her that he fired the fatal shot.

At creeping speeds

Space shuttle on landlubber's trip

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — America's first space shuttle headed for a landlubber's trip today — at creeping speeds of 5 to 10 miles an hour from a construction hangar to a dry lake runway 36 miles away.

Rockwell International, the main contractor for the craft, along with law officers, prepared security for the trip, which was expected to attract hundreds of sightseers from the southern California desert communities of Palmdale and Lancaster.

The sight was a half-rocket, half-airplane cargo carrier headed for Edwards Air Force Base.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the delta-winged 122-foot-long craft with a 53foot-high tail fin was timed to reach its temporary home at Dryden Flight Research at the base by late afternoon.

A 90-wheel trailer rig carrying the orbiter had tested the route twice to make sure the orbiter's 78-foot wingspan would clear all obstacles and to detect any weak spots in the roadway. The orbiter tips the scales at 110 tons.

The big moving job was being handled by Contractor's Cargo, a firm which in the past moved loads such as the massive fuel tanks for the Saturn rocket used in many U.S. space launches.

The space orbiter, says Lee Bisson of Contractors Cargo, is the "most expensive load ever carried in the history of trucking." Its value is not precisely known, but one NASA spokesman estimated the craft to be worth $500 million.

If tests go well, the craft in a few years will be fired by disposable rockets into space, where it will carry out scientific work in orbit, then glide without power back through the atmosphere to land on a runway.

Ground testing is to begin at Dryden on Feb. 18, when the orbiter will be placed, pilotless, atop a Boeing 747 jumbo jet. First the piggyback craft will be rolled around on a runway "just to see how the 747 handles — with that big glob on the top," said Donald "Deke" Slayton, veteran NASA astronaut who is in charge of the approach and landing tests.

Finally the orbiter will be released from the jumbo jet in a landing test slated for July 22.

Meeting slated

The Pomona Valley Chapter 227 of the American Association of Retired Persons will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Pilgrim Congregational Church, Pomona.

The Rev. Al Braswell will show slides of the recent earthquake in Guatemala and discuss churches he helped establish in the area.

Brown opens controversial diamond lane

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. has ordered the controversial diamond lanes on the San Diego Freeway opened to all traffic beginning today.

California Highway Patrol Officer John Johnson said the order from the governor, who spent the weekend in Los Angeles, was conveyed by CHP Southern Division Cmdr. Michael O'Leary.

The governor's order ends the restriction imposed by the California Deparment of Transportation, limiting the use of the constructed diamond lanes to buses and automobiles carrying at least three persons.

However, the diamond lanes—the lane nearest the center median in each direction on the San Diego Freeway, from the Santa Monica Freeway to the Ventura Freeway—were never used because of disputes between Caltrans and demands by citizens groups that the lanes be opened to all traffic.

Board action expected

Special projects studied

Action which might mean the possible cancellation, curtailment or modification of some special projects in the Pomona Unified School District will be taken by the school board Tuesday evening at 7:30 during its regular meeting in the Education Center board room.

The board held a special study session dealing with the district's special projects last Thursday at which an overflow crowd attended, causing the meeting to be moved to the multi purpose room at Simons Junior High School.

Among others, the staff will ask for board approval to submit applications to continue funding the Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) Pilot program, the Early Childhood Education program, the Headstart program and the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program.

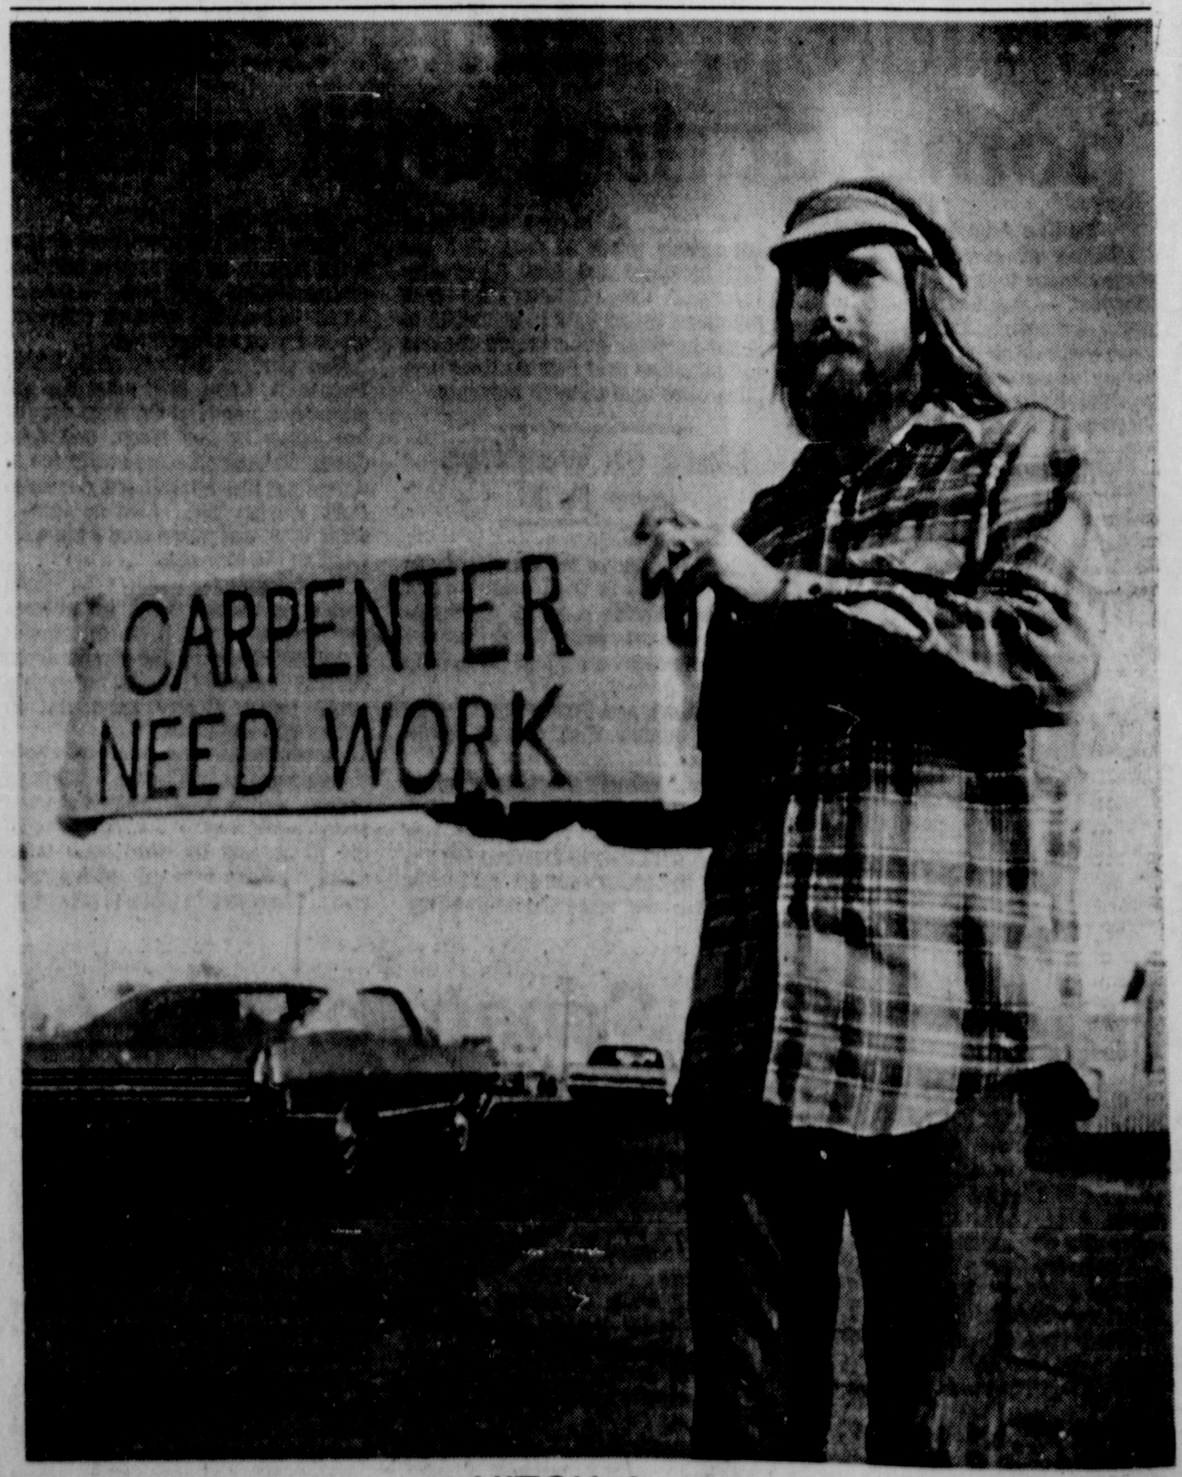

Requested by the board to provide a list of low-priority special projects which could be cut from the district special projects program, the administration has included the Bilingual Vocational Education Act program, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act ethnic heritage studies program, the ESAA bilingual program, the state Environmental Education program and the New Careers in Education program.

Also scheduled for board consideration Tuesday will be a list of alternatives for the Park Avenue High School site once the district's continuation high school takes up its new quarters on the former gas company site on West Second Street.

The board will consider authorizing a fundraising campaign for restoration of the Barbara Greenwood Arroyo kindergarten bungalow.

The board will also take action on a proposed regulation dealing with independent study for students in the district.

At the request of trustee Eugene Whitlock, the board will also consider the use of additional security on the district's high school campuses for the remainder of the school year and will also look at the possible need and financing for additional field trips for students in the district.

BRAKES FAIL ON SKI LIFT

Ski patrol members use sled to carry skier with broken ankle to aid station after automatic brake on chair lift at Jiminy Peack, Hancock, Mass., failed to engage Sunday. Authorities said about 70 persons were on the lift when the chairs began sliding backwards. Some passengers jumped and others were thrown into the snow. Several, including the skier shown who jumped 10 feet, were hospitalized. Broken chairs from the lift are in foreground.

U.S. will consult with Japanese—Mondale

TOKYO (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale promised Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda today that the Carter administration will consult with the Japanese government fully on issues that concern both nations.

Mondale also pledged that the new administration will make no sudden changes of policy that might embarrass Japan, like President Nixon's decision in 1972, without giving the Japanese ample warning, to improve relations with Communist China.

The vice president and the prime minister met for more than an hour. Mondale said it was a "very long and productive and useful" session, and he relayed to Fukuda the "strong desire of our government to have the closest possible cooperative relationship with the leaders of Japan."

Japanese sources said Mondale also conveyed an invitation from President Carter for Fukuda to visit Washington for talks with him March 21-22. Fukuda, who became prime minister following elections in early December, has said several times he wanted to go to Washington as soon as possible.

Much of the conversation was devoted to the international economic situation, the economic policies of both countries and the agenda, timing and site for the summit conference of major non-Communist industrial nations to be held this spring.

"There was agreement that both countries would, on a continuing basis, watch how each other's economies were doing," one source said. "You have to be in constant consultation."

He said the meeting was "very businesslike but relaxed," and "there are no issues of great tension."

Aides to Mondale said there was no discussion of withdrawal of U.S. ground troops from South Korea and future U.S. relations with China, but they said the two men would take up these topics at a meeting Tuesday. Afterward Mondale will hold a news conference and then leave for Washington.

One source said Mondale would "obviously reaffirm what has already been stated" about troop withdrawal from Korea: that the question is not whether it will take place but when. But one official said the South Korean government has been assured that "this is not a trip to cut a deal behind Korea's back."

The vice president arrived in Tokyo Sunday night from Paris after a trip of nearly 20 hours across northern Canada and Alaska. In a brief airport statement he emphasized that the new U.S. administration views Japanese participation as "an indispensable prerequisite to managing international economic problems and devising equitable solutions to global problems."

En route to Japan, the vice president's plane made refueling stops in Iceland, where he spoke with Prime Minister Geir Hallgrimson at the airport, and in Alaska, where he slept through the brief stop.

Talking with reporters during the flight, Mondale said he was holding up well despite the hectic travel pace.

"I'm in good shape," he said. "I've been able to hold up a lot better than I thought I would."

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Private contractors teamed with National Guardsmen and city workers today in an effort to clear snow from streets and highways in storm-beaten Buffalo.

But near-blizzard conditions maintained a stranglehold on western New York state, and some officials said the fight to clean snow-clogged streets seemed a losing battle because of high winds.

Roads remained littered with hundreds of abandoned automobiles Sunday night, hindering emergency vehicles and trucks loaded wholesale food and fuel oil for homes.

At least eight persons perished in this area's blizzard, authorities reported. Most were found in stalled autos, and officials attributed their deaths to the subzero weather, asphyxiation or heart attacks.

And at least two women who were unable to reach hospitals had babies at home, although without undue problems, police reported.

Police said scores of stalled vehicles, businesses and homes were looted by thieves who took advantage of the blizzard which battered the area for 17½ hours bginning Friday night. An estimated 59 accused looters were arraigned Sunday, most of them jailed in lieu of $1,000 bail. Drug stores, bakeries, a camera store and a car dealership were reported among the targets.

One fuel oil distributer said 25 of his 3,000 residential customers were without fuel Sunday night and predicted the number could jump to 500 by tonight, unless driving conditions improved dramatically.

Local contractors with "quickie contracts" arranged by officials with the federal Disaster Assistance Adminitstration were reported doing most of the cleanup work today. An estimated 250 National Guardsmen, city work crews and teams of the state and federal transportation departments helped.

Thomas Casey, regional administrator of the Disaster Assistance Administration, was given near-dictatorial powers to help preserve life and property under a declaration issued Saturday by President Carter. The designation empowered Casey to order federal troops to help remove snow and to contract with private firms, with the federal government footing the bill.

Casey told reporters Sunday it was "very likely" that federal troops, possibly from New Jersey's Fort Dix, would be called to assist.

Hastings sentenced for taking kickbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. James F. Hastings of New York was sentenced today to serve 20 months to five years in prison for accepting salary kickbacks from two men on his congressional payroll.

Hastings, a New York Republican who resigned a year ago to become president of a trade association, was given a week to clean up his affairs before reporting to prison.

Where he will serve his term will be decided by the Bureau of Prisons in the next few days.

"You were elected to a position of public honor," U.S. District Judge June L. Green told Hastings. She said he was guilty of "a violation of public trust."

Hastings was convicted Dec. 17 by a jury of 20 counts of mail fraud and eight counts of making false statements to the House Finance Office. The maximum sentence on each count was five years in prison.

Judge Green said she had received many letters to the effect that Hastings served his district well, that he and his family suffered enough already and "that since everybody does it, it is unfair to make an example of you."

She said she had considered all that but added:

"You were elected to a position of honor with grave national responsibilities. The conduct for which you have been found guilty constituted a violation of that public trust.

"The allegations that your actions in receiving kickbacks was standard procedure denigrates the vast majority of honorable public officials."

John Kotelly, an assistant U.S. attorney in the fraud division, told Judge Green that "We think the motive is clear in this case and that is a motive of greed. Mr. Hastings clearly abused the public trust."

Vance to speak frankly about Russian injustice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance vowed today to "speak frankly about injustice" in the Soviet Union and other countries and said he is convinced it will not harm U.S. foreign policy objectives.

"We don't intend to be strident or polemical, and we will not comment on each and every issue," Vance told his first news conference after nearly two weeks on the job.

But, he emphasized, he fully subscribes to the State Department's affirmation of support for embattled Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov even though he did not authorize last Thursday's implicit warning to Moscow. Vance said he does not believe "it will have a negative impact" on his projected trip next month to try to advance nuclear weapons negotiations.

Carter roundup

MIA information sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is asking members of Congress what the United States can do to get an accounting of the 800 Americans still missing in action in Southeast Asia.

Carter called a meeting today with Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., whose Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia urged the United States to press as hard as possible for an accounting.

A Montgomery aide said Carter, the congressman and other members of the committee were focusing on details of the panel's report last December. The report concluded that no Americans are still being held prisoner from the Indochina war.

"The congressman himself has said that the matter (of missing persons) is up to the State Department now," the aide said. "Under the law, they are the ones who can negotiate (an accounting)."

The meeting came one day after Carter witnessed the installation of Andrew Young as his United Nations ambassador. Young was to present credentials to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim later today.

Young, a former Democratic congressman from Georgia, says he hopes the country will move toward admitting Hanoi into the United Nations. But he acknowledged the men missing in action (MIAs) remain an issue.

The Ford administration twice vetoed Vietnamese entry into the U.N., citing what it called a hostile Vietnamese attitude toward requests for the accounting.

Oath-taking ceremonies for Young, whom Carter called the best public servant he has ever known, followed the President's return Sunday from a trip to Pittsburgh, where he toured a chilly, partially closed factory to dramatize the nation's energy crisis.

Carter has declared emergencies in states hit hard by the fuel shortage, including Pennsylvania and New York. The shortage has been compounded by the coldest winter in a decade. The declaration makes the states eligible for federal aid.

Florida officials said the President intended to declare that state a major disaster area because of crop damage caused by the cold.

In Pittsburgh, Carter called upon Americans to make greater sacrifices to ease the fuel shortage and keep more people from losing their jobs. Some 1.5 million persons have been laid off because their plants no longer have enough fuel to keep operating.

He said anew that all Americans should drop their thermostats to 65 degrees, like he has at the White House — and urged those with fireplaces to burn logs, turn their thermostats as low as 50 degrees and wear more clothes.

At the plant and in talks with reporters on the helicopter he rode instead of Air Force One to save fuel, Carter said he wants authority to take natural gas from some industries and give it to others.

Talking about 3 to 5 per cent of the nation's gas supply, Carter said he wants to be able to take it away from industries employing few persons and making non-crucial products and allocate it to industries that employ many and make more essential goods.

'Open' Cabinet meetings studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today he is considering opening his Cabinet meetings to news media coverage.

Carter told his Cabinet that his two concerns about such a move are public discussion of national security matters and the Cabinet officers' own possible reticence. But he said he is inclined to try the open policy at another Cabinet meeting next week.

Cabinet meetings under past presidents traditionally have been closed except occassionally when a President wanted to make a public statement or simply have the meeting photographed.

But this morning Carter told his department heads, with reporters present: "When we make a mistake here or have some embarrassing thing occur, it's going to leak out anyway. But we do want to let the public know the government is in good hands."

After voicing concern about discussion of national security matters, Carter said that "in any case national security matters are not going to be secure in such a large meeting," an apparent reference to leaks.

The President also noted 'hat "Cabinet officers may be concerned if they are called on to make a proposal and the proposal turns out not to be the best proposal."

He said he would be discussing his plan with Press Secretary Jody Powell and with some reporters, then would circulate a memo to Cabinet members before making a final decision.

Reporters were escorted from the meeting a few minutes after it began.

Coast Guard plans to burn off oil spill

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — The Coast Guard was prepared today to bombard a 100,000-gallon oil spill with chemicals and set it afire before the smear reaches Cape Cod's sandy beaches.

The oil leaked Friday night from an ice-locked barge that grounded on a sandy ledge in Buzzards Bay. Several slicks of oil, each about 100 yards long, drifted today about four miles off West Falmouth.

The Coast Guard planned to drop flammable material on the waterborne oil from a helicopter. Army ordinance experts agreed to help with the operation.

Fire hides school theft

A fire believed set to cover the theft of a teacher's gradebook caused major damage to a special math classroom at De Anza Junior High School in Ontario late Saturday or early Sunday, said investigators.

The fire apparently extinguished itself. The damage was discovered by a school employe Sunday morning. Firemen entered the damaged classroom and found a charred pile of workbooks, melted plastic desk tops and viewers, and burned walls.

Police were called after a classroom window was found broken and the teacher's desk drawer open. School officials said the only item reported missing was the teacher's gradebook.

Firemen said they found where a large number of workbooks, papers and other combustible items had been piled in the center of the room and then set on fire with a match.

Investigators said the estimated loss to the structure and contents has not been determined.

$500 Red-tailed hawk stolen

A Red-tailed hawk, valued at $500, was stolen during a two-minute period that its owner was inside his home at 18814 Galatea St. in the Azusa area, sheriff's deputies reported today.

The owner, Randy L. Barker, said he had been training the hawk and had gone into his house briefly Saturday evening. When he returned, the bird was missing. Two leather straps used to secure the hawk to the perch remained attached to the stand.

Such birds are used for hunting and are registered with the California Department of Fish and Game. The stolen bird was an 18-month-old female, reddish-brown and gold.

Gunfire shatters windows

The windows of an apartment at 849 Woodlawn St., Ontario were shot out Sunday night and an Ontario man was injured by a hit-and — hit-and-run motorist leaving the area, said police.

Officers reported a car drove in front of the apartment about 7 p.m. and its occupants began firing with possibly .22-caliber semi-automatic rifles.

Bullets smashed the windows of the apartment occupied by the renter, Margaret Martinez, and numerous other persons attending a party.

The occupants ran outside to confront a number of persons inside a car attempting to leave the area.

When officers arrived, they found a man lying in the street, apparently struck by the vehicle, said investigators. The victim, Steve Brito Garcia, 21, was taken to Ontario Community Hospital where he was treated and later released.

Police later apprehended Angel Hernandez, 36, of 1007 Bon View Ave., as the possible driver of the vehicle.

Officers reported that a crowd surrounded their police car as they were making the arrest. Other police units responding to a report that someone had been shot at the residence arrived in time to disperse the crowd.

In checking the apartment, police found bullets had shattered the windows and also hit at least one parked vehicle.

Police said the driver apprehended reported he was forced to hit the victim because the man was about to throw a brick through his windshield. The series of events is still being investigated, said officers.

Security increased at CIW

For the past three days, inmates at the California Institution for Women in Chino have been placed on "lockdown" after security officers received information that a weapon may have been smuggled onto the prison grounds.

This was ordered Friday by CIW Supt. Kathleen M. Anderson. All 703 inmates were locked in their cells Friday night as two members of the National Guard searched the living quarters and grounds with a metal detector.

After the initial search, women were allowed limited movement on the grounds, but seven women remained in segregation pending further questioning about the incident, said officials.

Le Sex Shoppe robbed

Two men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, robbed Le Sex Shoppe, a so-called "adult book store" at 735 E. Mission Blvd. Sunday.

Ronald L. Shalupnik, 23, employed at the Pomona store, told police he was working when he turned and found the man pointing the weapon at him. He said he was ordered to lie on the floor and remained there while the robber looted the cash register. The gunman also took several reels of what police described as pornographic movie films.

The victim said that as he lay on the floor he heard the voice of a companion to the gunman, but did not see him.

The armed man was described as black, 20 to 25 years old, 5 feet 8 and slender. He wore a green army fatigue jacket, knit cap and dark trousers.

Montclair girl raped

A tatooed man who stuttered kidnaped a 17-year-old Montclair girl Sunday as she was walking to a friend's home and then drove her to the north Chino area where he raped her, said sheriff's deputies.

The girl was walking in the area of Monte Vista Avenue and State Street when the man driving a small foreign car stopped and offered her a ride. The girl refused, and the man drove off. He returned a few minutes later and dragged her into the car, added investigators.

The victim said she was driven to a vacant field near Chino and the man slapped and beat her before sexually attacking her. The girl was released in the Chino area, and the rapist drove off.

Deputies described the kidnaper-rapist as white, curly long hair, having a mustache, and a scar on the right side of his face.

He had tatooes on both arms. One depicted a ribbon and the other, two animals with names. The victim said the man stuttered when he talked. He didn't wear a shirt or undershirt.

The robbers were seen fleeing on foot north of the shop at the intersection of Garey Avenue and Arrow Highway.

One robber was described as 5 feet 6, 140 pounds, with short black hair. He was clean shaven. The second man was 6 feet tall, 160 pounds, with short black hair and a mustache. Both wore jackets.

Mondale praised in Europe

PARIS (AP) — European newspapers are praising Vice President Walter Mondale's visit and calling the Carter administration's debut in international diplomacy a sign of closer consultation and better coordination of policy with America's allies.

"After Mondale's talks there appears to be a better foundation for the hope that the new administration will consult and coordinate its policy with that of its allies — as compared with what Nixon-Kissinger and Ford-Kissinger used to do," said Italy's biggest newspaper, Milan's Corriere della Sera.

A Socialist Rome paper, La Republica, had a similar comment: "The Carter era will be something new and different from that of Kissinger. As of now it is shaping up as a result of a more diversified international strategy that gives priority to the ties of the alliance with Europe and Japan and considers the Italian case within this context."

During his week in Europe, Mondale met leaders of Belgium, West Germany, Italy, Britain, France, the European Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, as well as Pope Paul VI.

"The Carter riddle is no longer so strange," said the Frankfurter Algemeine Zeitung. It reported West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt "quickly came to appreciate the open, firm manner of the new vice president, who is relatively inexperienced in foreign policy but reacts quickly to new situations."

Die Welt, another West German paper, said Schmidt found Mondale to be "a clever politician who can laugh easily but understands how to be a tough negotiator. The State Department's European experts prepared him well for the talks in Bonn so he was completely versed in questions that were new for him."

The French newsapaper France-Soir said Mondale, "with his blue eyes and his Nordic chestnut-colored hair, son of a Minnesota Methodist pastor, was like a torchbearer of the Kennedy 'New Frontier.'"

Carter queasy during copter ride

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he was seasick throughout his first week on a Navy submarine, but, "I never missed my watch."

The President was reminded of that episode Sunday during a bumpy 175-mile helicopter ride to Pittsburgh to survey effects of the cold winter. He said the ride made him slightly queasy, but his chief Secret Service agent and one reporter became downright ill.

Carter said that during his first week on board the USS Pomfret after graduating from the U.S. Naval Academy, the submarine was in the Pacific and encountered a driving storm.

He said the storm, an odor of cigarettes and diesel fuel, and stomach upset combined to give him a nonstop bout of seasickness.

What's more, the President said, the submarine's radio-sending equipment became disabled, causing the Navy to declare the Pomfret lost. His wife, Rosalynn, didn't get that word because the Navy had trouble reaching her in Georgia.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Not counting food and clothes, the state of Utah spent more than $60,000 trying, imprisoning and eventually executing killer Gary Gilmore on Jan. 17, a newpaper says.

The Salt Lake Tribune reported Sunday that Utah County Atty. Noall Wootton said the three-day trial cost between $15,000 and $20,000.

The newspaper said Utah State Prison officials estimated the 102 days they housed Gilmore cost taxpayers $18,330, including the tab from the University of Utah Medical Center where Gilmore was hospitalized twice for taking drug overdoses.

The firing squad that shot him earned $725, and more than 200 of the prison's staff of 320 were called in at 3 a.m. on the execution day.

Atty. Gen. Robert Hansen estimated it cost $19,000 for the extra work of his deputies and secretaries. It cost the state $513 for an airplane flight to Denver where a last-minute stay of execution was overturned by the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrew Young, hailed by President Carter as the best public servant he has ever known, has been sworn in as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall administered the oath Sunday in the East Room of the White House to the former Georgia congressman who was active in the civil rights struggles of the 1960s.

Applause from guests when Young and his wife entered prompted Carter to joke: "I may have made the wrong choice. This is the first Cabinet officer who has gotten more applause than the President."

Young will leave Feb. 1 on a 10-day trip to Tanzania and Nigeria.

How much do you know about human nature?

NEW YORK (AP) — Isn't is funny that most of us think we know about human nature just because we're human? We believe we understand people because we're people.

It seems there must be a little of the psychologist in each of us. But all too often we're led astray by popular beliefs which have been proven wrong.

Here is a quiz which might help show some of our untested assumptions about what it means to be human.

Answer each item true or false, then read the explanations that follow.

TRUE or FALSE

1. A shifty-eyed person is more likely than not to be dishonest.

2. Infants instinctively fear the dark.

3. People who are good with numbers usually are good with words.

4. Compared with high IQ kids, low IQ kids turn out to have better health, job success and marital adjustment.

5. Mentally ill persons don't realize they are sick.

6. If a worker is dissatisfied he will produce less.

7. A hypnotized person can be led to do something antisocial.

8. A person's photograph reveals very little about his or her personality.

ANSWERS AND EXPLANATIONS

1. FALSE. There is no connection between eye-gaze fixity and honesty. One study showed that psychopathic liars actually maintained steadier eye contact in speaking with others.

2. FALSE. Studies at the Gesell Institute of Infant Research at Yale University found that infants have only three instinctive fears. These involve loud noises, sudden changes in surroundings and loss of physical support.

3. TRUE. Surveys of thousands of tests scores show that good ability with numbers is related to general intelligence.

4. FALSE. Lewis Terman, a psychologist at Stanford University, exploded the stereotype of the bright child as sickly and frail. Actually, bright kids have better mental and physical health, grow up to be happier in their jobs, and live longer, too.

5. FALSE. The overwhelming majority of patients have insight into their irrational behavior tendencies.

6. FALSE. Although industrial psychologists can't explain why, repeated studies show that workers with job blahs do not slack off in their work productivity.

7. TRUE. Experiments have shown that under special conditions, hypnotized subjects can be induced to steal, lie and inflict injury on others provided they are convinced of the necessity to act in these ways.

8. TRUE. The findings show that a person's IQ or personality cannot be judged accurately from his picture.

Medical brochure

A new brochure describing how to get prompt medical care in emergency situations is being distributed by Inter-Community Hospital at Covina according to John D. Williams, administrator.

The brochure, entitled "How to get Help in a Medical Emergency," was prepared by the Hospital Council of Southern California and includes space to record important information such as telephone numbers of doctors, hospitals, ambulance services, and rescue squads.

In addition, there are concise instructions for preplanning for emergencies, plus tips on what to expect at the hospital emergency department, how to determine if an emergency exists, and a checklist to follow in an emergency.

"Each year, thousands of lives are lost because people panic when faced with an emergency," said Williams, administrator. "This brochure will help prevent that panic and could save the life of a loved one."

Copies of the brochure may be obtained at no charge in the hospital's lobby or the public relations department.

Hearing for slaying suspect scheduled

A Chino man accused in the shooting death of an Ontario man Jan. 17 in Chino must appear in the San Bernardino Municipal Court Feb. 8 for a preliminary hearing.

He is Ernest Miguel Garcia, 23, who was arrested following the slaying of Anthony Marcos Garcia, 18, whose body was found in a field near Second Street.

Three juveniles were also arrested and charged with murder. They are waiting dispositions in juvenile court.

Garcia, no relation to the victim, appeared Tuesday for arraignment on the murder charge before Judge Theodore Crum in the San Bernardino court.

Police investigating the slaying reported the victim was found lying face down in a field. He was believed to have been shot twice in the head by a shotgun at close range.

Just prior to his death, officers believe the victim had been riding in a stolen car in the Chino area that was spotted by police.

He and several other occupants jumped from the vehicle to escape from officers, they added. Garcia is believed to have run into Chino's downtown area where he was confronted by persons who beat, stabbed and shot him.

Police said four persons arrested are believed to be associated with the Chino Sinners street gang, while the victim was reported to have ties with a rival Ontario gang called the Black Angels.

Prior to his being charged with murder, Garcia was arrested a day after the slaying on a narcotics charge. In addition, he was on bail pending trial on a charge of assault on a peace officer which stemmed from a D.E.S. Hall riot last September, said investigators.

Ontario police said the shooting victim had been arrested earlier this month following the stabbing death of an Ontario man. He was later released when it was determined that Garcia had acted in self defense, they added.

Poetry contest open only to students in Claremont schools

The Friends of the Claremont Public Library have cautioned that their 11th annual poetry contest is open only to students living in Claremont or attending Claremont public or private schools.

Noting that in 1976 the contest attracted 660 entries from kindergartners through eighth graders, Mrs. Anne Brower, contest chairman, reported that the contest must be restricted to Claremonters.

Mrs. Brower said that she has received several phone calls from students not connected with Claremont but who would like to compete in the popular contest.

Teachers will collect all entries by Feb. 28 and send them to the library contest committee which in turn will sort them by grades and send them to the judges.

University Club to hear scientist

Conway Snyder, orbiter scientist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, will address the University Club of Claremont at its noon luncheon on Tuesday at Griswold's Restaurant.

His subject is "The Planet Mars As Revealed By The Viking Project."

He joined the physics section of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Caltech in 1956 and has been the principal investigator on three space experiments to investigate the solar wind. This included the Mariner II fly-by of Venus. He also was the project scientist for the Mariner 5 mission.

He is a three-time recipient of the Exceptional Scientific Achievement award from NASA and was awarded a doctor of science degree by the University of Redlands.

YFC president will speak in Claremont

Some 500 valley adults are expected to hear Jay Kesler, president of Youth For Christ International of Wheaton, Ill., speak at the 1977 Presidential Reception Tuesday at Griswold's Old School House Pavilion in Claremont.

A staff member of Youth For Christ for 18 years, Kesler has spoken to young people on five continents and has authored several books on adult and adolescent relationships.

Youth for Christ and Campus Life will also present the annual appreciation award to an adult couple who have made a significant contribution to the services of Youth For Christ this past year. Reports on the progress of the 19 high school Campus Life Clubs and the Youth Guidance program will also be given.

San Gabriel Pomona Valley Youth For Christ is one of 214 local chapters which specialize in ministry to high school students. They sponsor evening Campus Life Clubs and camps, offer counseling, and conduct large citywide events such as Breakaway. The 11 full time youth workers plus 70 volunteers are supported by the contributions of parents, businessmen, churches and other adults.

Youth For Christ has also spread to 39 other nations since its founding in the 1940s by the Rev. Torrey Johnson and a then young evangelist, Billy Graham.

Kesler, 37, lives near the national YFC office in Wheaton, Ill.

Music for the reception will be provided by The Overtones, a musical ensemble comprised of 20 young adults from the Pomona First Baptist Church.

Dessert and coffee will be catered by Griswold's and will be provided by the Youth For Christ board of directors.

Executive Director Ray Schutte said admission to the reception is free, but reservations are required. These may be made by calling the Campus Life office in Covina at 599-6515.

Parents form group backing school plea

Parents in the Walnut Valley Unified School District have announced the formation of Parents Actively Supporting Schools Phase II (PASS II) to work for the passage of the revenue limit election in the March 8 school balloting.

Laz Babos of Diamond Bar and Lou Nimmons of Walnut have been named co-chairmen for the group with other offices going to Ron Kinsman, finance; Lois Tucker, telephone survey; Donna Winan, voter registration; Shirley Squire, speakers bureau and Millie Erbe, publicity.

A state formula determines the maximum income per child that a district is permitted to have in each school year. The only way that limit may be increased is through a tax revenue limit election.

Two years ago voters in the district approved a $58 per child increase. That increase expires at the end of June. The voters are being asked to approve a $75 increase in the tax revenue limit which is $17 over and beyond the already existing $58 figure.

Unless this increase is approved, say PASS II officials, programs including kindergarten through 6th grade music, after school recreation, enrichment classes at the intermediate level and high school bus service, will have to be curtailed or eliminated.

The group will plan a series of informational coffees where a member of the speakers' bureau and a district representative will meet and answer questions. Volunteers will also be distributing printed information to homes in the Walnut Valley Unified School District.

Only one of three suspects released

It was previously reported that two suspects arrested in the Dec. 18 slaying of Robert Moreno Aguilar, 18, of Ontario had been released from custody.

That was in error, as only one person arrested has been released, said police.

The two suspects, Joe Salomon Negrette, 18, and Raymond Sandy Porter, 19, both Chino, were recently ordered to stand trial on murder charges following a preliminary hearing in West Valley Municipal Court.

They will appear within the next two weeks in the West Valley Superior Court where a trial date will be set.

Charges were dismissed against Gilbert Anthony Martinez, 19, of Chino at the start of the hearing for lack of sufficient evidence.

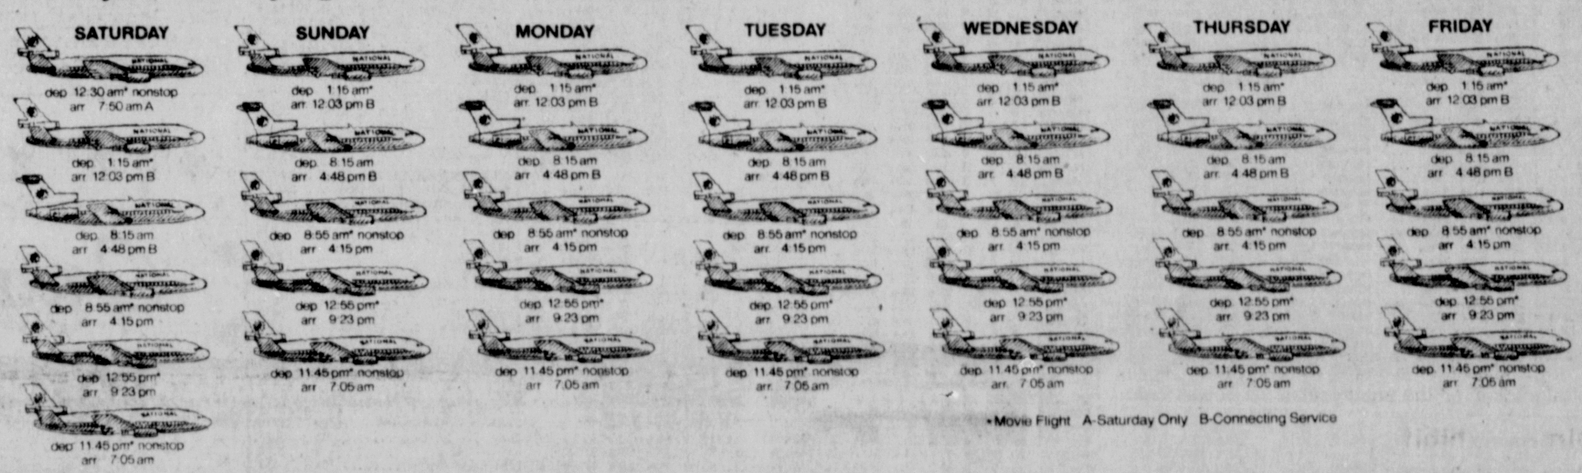

Jury would not buy his story

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Joe Castillo, 23, says he loaned his car to a friend in Mexico and went for it when the friend failed to return it.

The jury apparently didn't believe Castillo, however, when he said he was unaware of 81 pounds of marijuana worth $10,000 on the car's back seat. Customs agents said they found it at the border Nov. 14.

*Movie Flight A-Saturday Only B-Connecting Service

Nobody has as many nonstops to Miami as National. To make it even easier on you, we fly nonstop more times than anyone else. (So why call anyone else?)

National's 2-by-2 wide-cabin seating. On all our nonstop flights to Miami, you're never more than one seat away from the aisle. And they're big DC-10 coach seats, with plenty of room in all directions.

Nobody has as many free full-length movies as National. Great new movies, great old movies, we've got the most. And they're free. And we change them every two weeks (which nobody else does).

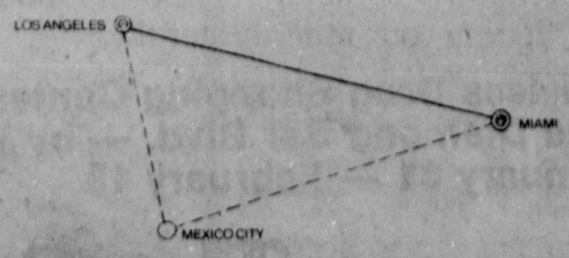

Nobody else saves you $76 on direct nightcoach. National has the only direct roundtrip nightcoach. (With other airlines you have to change planes.) With us, you take only one plane and save $76 round trip.

Two CMC economists cite forces shaping Carter government

In the quarterly report of the Applied Financial Economics Center (AFEC), Claremont Men's College economists James Meigs and John Rutledge review the forces shaping government policies and discuss the outlook for output, prices and interest rates during President Carter's first two years in office.

In many ways, the economists note, President Carter finds himself in much the same position as Kennedy in 1961; the nation is coming out of a recession with much reduced inflation rates.

But Carter's advisers, according to Meigs and Rutledge, are unlike Kennedy's team because they recognize that monetary policy exerts a powerful influence on economic activity.

The economists believe that Carter's people will push for both fiscal and monetary stimulus in 1977 and 1978, cutting taxes and increasing rates of spending and money growth.

They forecast a strong business expansion over the next two years, with GNP rising at a 9 per cent rate in 1977 and at a 9.3 per cent rate in 1978. They also expect some form of wage-price guidelines by the end of 1977.

Meigs and Rutledge warn that Carter's expansive fiscal policies, together with the weakening Federal Reserve stance on inflation, will put upward pressure on inflation rates during the next two years, and predict that by 1980 this inflation rate will be in excess of 7 per cent.

The report, which includes charts and graphs, analyzes some of the risks in the Carter Administration's proposals for accelerating economic expansion and reducing unemployment.

The economists believe that Carter's team will push for a tax cut or a spending increase or "some combination of the two," so stimulate consumer spending. But, according to Meigs and Rutledge, these would not have a significant impact on national income and employment in 1977, but could raise expectations of inflation.

"Increases in government expenditures do not add to GNP," they said. "They merely reallocate it, making the government bigger."

A tax cut, the economists noted, would shift total expenditures toward the private sector, but probably would not offset the effects of inflation on real tax rates.

According to Meigs and Rutledge, "all eyes will be on the Federal Reserve this year." They said that the short-term money markets in 1977 will be dominated by uncertainty over the Fed's policies, and expect Fed Funds rates to increase by more than 100 basis points this year, with more than half of

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DOES A FEVER THERMOMETER WORK?" KARINE MITTWER POMONA, CA

A. A FEVER THERMOMETER MEASURES THE DEGREE OF BODY HEAT BY MEASURING HOW MUCH MERCURY EXPANDS WHEN IT GETS HOT

A fever thermometer shows the doctor whether or not you have a fever when you are sick. It is a special kind of mercury thermometer.

It is a hollow glass tube with a bulb at one end filled with mercury. The other end is sealed.

When the bulb end is put under your tongue, the mercury is warmed by your body heat. As the mercury is warmed it expands and pushes upward into the tube. The warmer your temperature, the higher the mercury rises.

A scale on the thermometer tells the doctor how high your temperature is in degrees.

One side of the thermometer is a prism. It magnifies the thin column of mercury so that the doctor can read the thermometer accurately when he takes it out of your mouth.

There is a pinched-in place in the tube to keep the mercury from shrinking back into the bulb as it cools. It stays up the tube until someone shakes it down.

The ugly side of stardom

Tony Orlando writes his epitaph

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Consider stardom. For most people, looking at that grand institution from the outside, it seems the height of glamor. What could be better than the fame and fortune that go with being a big name in show business?

I spoke to Tony Orlando about the subject. Maybe it was because his CBS show was being cancelled, but he talked of the negative aspects of being a major star.

He became downright gloomy and talked in terms of the epitaph he has prepared, he says, for his tombstone.

"I read a book about tombstones," Orlando said, "and I've been giving a lot of thought to the problem. And I finally figured what I'd like to have on mine.

"The front of it would read:

"LIFE IS A SLOW DEATH.

"And then, on the back, there would be these words:

"AH, BUT WHAT A WAY TO GO."

That philosophical dichotomy about stardom permeates Orlando's thinking on the subject. He recognizes the good and the bad in his situation, as one of today's most popular entertainers.

He likes being successful. He likes entertaining the public and watching them respond to his artistry. And he likes the material rewards that brings.

"I like money and what it can buy," he says. "I like driving fancy cars, wearing fancy clothes, living in style. It's a good feeling to make money.

"For the first time in years, I am now solvent. I don't owe anybody a penny. I've paid off all my debts. I've paid all my taxes. I bought a new house."

So, financially, stardom pleases him. But the good life is not all fancy cars and clothes.

"The public," he says, "has no idea of the work it takes to put on a variety show. I wish I had a dollar for every time I've gone on a plane and some woman has come up to me and said, 'You have it made — you only have to work one hour a week every Wednesday.'

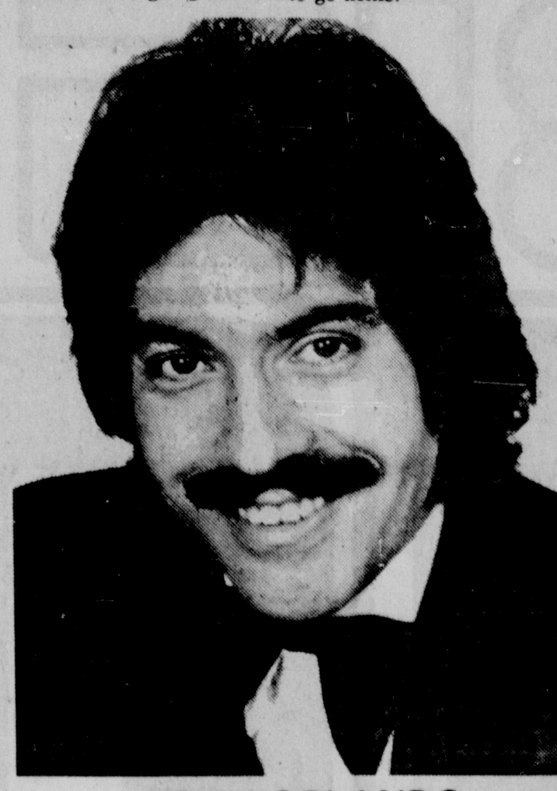

"They just don't understand that you have to be there (at CBS) at 8:30 every morning and don't get home until ten or so in the evening. And that's six days a week.

"I'm tired. I can understand why some performers quit, because the grind is just so tough."

He looked tired. The bounce that characterizes his on-screen personality was missing. He leaned back in his chair, propping his high-soled shoes up on his desk.

"I make a lot of money," he said, "but I have to pay a big price for that money. The big thing is the loss of anonymity.

"Say — take my six-year-old son to the beach. I'm immediately surrounded. Autographs. Pictures. Whatever. And Kenny keeps saying, But, Daddy, you promised to take me on the merry-go-round. when are we going on the merry-go-round. You promised.' By then it's four o'clock, and I've done nothing but sign autographs, and it's time to go home."

TONY ORLANDO

Orlando says he doesn't like to talk this way, to burst the public's shimmering bubble.

"That's another price a star has to pay for stardom," he says. "It's wrong to destroy the public's fantasy. They think being a star is the greatest thing there is. I am living their fantasy. It would be cruel to destroy that fantasy, to tell them of the ugly side of stardom."

In a way, Tony Orlando is living his own fantasy. He grew up, a New York slum kid, wanting stardom. His particular dream, however, wasn't so much for the money.

"Ever since I was a kid," he says, "I've wanted to entertain people, to bring them some laughs, some pleasure. Honestly, I'm not in the business for the money, although I like money.

"But it wasn't the money that drove me. As a matter of fact, when I first went on TV — July 3, 1974 — I was $800,000 in debt. That's proof that I wasn't in show business for the money."

"It's wonderful, being a star," he says, "no matter what I've said. It's what I always wanted."

Starlite to offer singers

World balladeers Marais and Miranda will present a concert in the Montclair High School auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Feb. 10, one of the Montclair Starlite Series. Admission is free.

The duo, who last appeared on the Starlite Series in 1969, have toured Europe and have appeared on many continental television circuits, speaking six languages between them. They introduced their songs in Dutch when they appeared in Holland, in French and Flemish in France and Belgium, and in German in Frankfurt. London audiences enjoyed the quips and informal talk which is still the duo's trademark in the United States.

'Oh, heavens'—local family arrested in Gonzales

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

It had the makings of a perfect vacation for Mike Bules, his wife, Jean, and their 16-year-old daughter Sue.

They had left the motel early that morning in August in order to get an early start on their ultimate destination in Florida to visit relatives.

The Bules, of Pomona, had intended for their trip through Louisiana to be a leisurely one and the fact that the main highway, Interstate 10, was closed for construction did not dampen their spirits in the least.

As they drove off the main highway and into the densely wooded area, they suddenly came upon the small town of Gonzales, La.

Creeping through the town, they were suddenly confronted by a policeman blocking the path of their car.

"Okay," exclaimed the stone-faced officer. "Pull it over."

"My first thought was, 'Heavens what did we do?" recalled Mrs. Bules.

As the car pulled to a stop, the officer walked over to the car, looked in and asked Mr. Bules, "How would you like to stay with us for a while?"

Bules, thinking what the man had in mind was some time in the local jail, responded, "No thank you officer, I'd just as soon pay the fine."

Actually, the officer was inviting the Bules family to be a guest of the city for a day and to get a real taste of that "southern hospitality."

"The people in Gonzales were so nice to us we couldn't believe it," says Mrs. Bules. "The chief of police explained to us that every year the town of Gonzales holds a 'Tourist Appreciation Day' by 'arresting' an out-of-state couple.

"After our initial shock wore off we realized he was serious and that we were going to get the VIP treatment . . . we sure did!"

The Bules began with cafe-au-lait and French donuts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William LeBeouf, where they were introduced to a number of citizens from Gonzales.

A jambalaya luncheon, a famous Cajun dish, followed the reception.

"In the afternoon, we spent our time touring the town," said Mrs. Bules. "We visited some beautiful plantation homes and saw some pretty country."

The Bules were set up for the evening at one of the fine hotels in Gonzales. During the day, over 40 merchants showered them with gifts.

"We were treated to dinner that night," said Mrs. Bules. "They provided entertainment, including piano music, a singing group, dancers and speakers."

Now safe and sound in their Pomona home, the family looks back fondly on their "Louisiana experience." They still communicate regularly with some of the friends they met halfway across the continent.

"I'd love to go back," said Mrs. Bules. "I've never been anywhere where the people were so friendly and nice.

"It's a good feeling to know there are people still around who believe in friendliness to strangers."

Protesting residents ecstatic

Transit district to ban rumbling buses

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The big RTD buses are gone from Green and Olive streets in Claremont, and the residents are "ecstatic."

The board of directors of the Southern California Rapid Transit District is expected today to take action to approve the detour of the big buses to Bucknell Avenue and Santa Fe Street for turnarounds.

RTD bus drivers began last Wednesday using the commercial streets as turnarounds at the ends of their routes.

Residents on Green and Olive streets became irritated last fall about the buses rumbling east on Green Street and highballing south on Olive Street to start their route west on Arrow Highway.

Mrs. Lloyd Ritchey of 231 Olive St. and Mrs. Don Gump of 224 Olive St. walked the two streets and had residents sign a petition to the Claremont City Council asking aid in getting the buses out of the neighborhood. They were able to get 42 signatures which they took to the council meeting Nov. 23.

"I'm very satisfied that a group of citizens could band together over a mutual problem to get something done," said Lloyd Ritchey. "The fact that the council listened to us and got RTD to respond restores my faith in our government representatives."

Ritchey explained that the RTD bus drivers used Green and Olive streets for their stop and smoke time, and that no one in the neighborhood could board or get off a bus on the residential streets.

"They had to walk to Indian Hill Boulevard and Arrow Highway to board the bus," he said.

Mrs. Gump said that the neighbors are "ecstatic" about the buses missing from the street.

"I noticed Friday that there were no buses, and I became very happy," she said. "Those buses had been bothering us as late as 10:30 at night. We have 10 preschool and school children living in this area, and we were afraid for their safety."

"We are grateful to the City Council for its prompt action," she said.

An RTD spokesman said that the detour of the buses will cost an extra $1,800 a year.

'OH, HEAVENS—ARRESTED'

Mike Bules of Pomona, his daughter, Sue, and wife, Jean, reminisce over last year's summer vacation they took across the U.S. The three were "arrested" in the small town of Gonzales, La., during their trip. Actually, the arrest was a promotional affair to honor the Bules in an annual "Tourist Appreciation Day" the city holds every summer.

For rare brain disorder

Local girl faces second surgery

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

Kimberly Ayers, the 16-year-old Pomona girl who underwent surgery for a rare brain disorder last May 19 in New York, is returning Feb. 7 for a second operation.

Her mother, Mrs. Faye Barnes of Pomona, said Kim, who before May was rigid with a degenerative muscular disease called dystonia, had regressed since the May surgery.

After returning to Angel View Crippled Children's Hospital in Desert Hot Springs where she has been cared for the past few years, Kim was able to walk with a walker and speak in a whisper. She had lost her powers of speech several years ago.

Now, Mrs. Barnes said, Kim cannot walk. She can, however, sit in a wheelchair, something she could not do before the initial surgery. And, her arms are freed and she can write. Before the surgery she could not use her arms or her hands.

Generous readers contributed $17,000 to the Kim Ayers Benefit Fund after the Progress Bulletin told her story a year ago.

"Kim was very disappointed after she returned home from New York last June," said Mrs. Barnes. "She thought she would be able to walk and talk.

"I've warned her this time not to expect miracles."

Mrs. Barnes said funds from the initial contributions will finance this trip and this surgery.

"We are to report to St. Barnabas Hospital in the Bronx on Feb. 7, and a date for surgery will be set," said Mrs. Barnes. The surgeon in Kim's case is Dr. I. S. Cooper.

In May, Kim was in surgery 45 minutes. Mrs. Barnes said she was not given a general anesthesia and answered questions while the doctor performed the operation.

Kim was a normal child until age 10 when she was in fourth grade at Washington Elementary School in Pomona. Her condition first was diagnosed as mental illness and she was sent to Camarillo State Hospital. Shortly she was disgnosed as a dystonia patient and sent to UCLA Medical Center, then Angel View.

She is continuing her school work there and communicates with those around her by writing notes, her mother said.

Four injured in weekend car accident

Four members of an Ontario family were injured Sunday afternoon in a two-car collision which tied up traffic to the Winternationals drag races at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

The accident occurred when one car went out of control after the driver attempted to pass a string of autos stopped and awaiting entry into the fairgrounds, Pomona police reported.

That car, eastbound and driven by Dennis G. Davids, 28, of Pomona, ran off McKinley Avenue west of Ganesha Boulevard eastbound and collided with the westbound car containing the Ontario family members and driven by Ruben Lopez Arzola, 41. The impact sent the Arzola car spinning into a chain-link fence bordering the fairgrounds.

In Mt. Baldy collision

Children are saved by bus driver's skill

Courageous and skillful driving by a 22-year-old woman bus driver was credited with saving several lives in a spectacular double collision on Mt. Baldy Road Saturday afternoon involving a pickup truck, a motorcycle, a jeep, four cars and the chartered bus carrying five school staff members and 44 high school students.

The first accident occurred at 3:30 p.m. when Mark R. Adkins of 693 N. Second Ave., Upland, celebrating his 18th birthday, crossed over the center line as he was driving his jeep south on the winding mountain road south of Barrett-Stoddard Road and collided with a northbound pickup driven by Douglas W. Heath, 23, of 1205 Cypress Ave., San Dimas, the highway patrol reported.

The jeep then struck cars driven by William F. Mundowsky, 42, San Antonio Falls Tract, Mt. Baldy; Curtis A. Riggins, 21, of 5065 Center St., Chino, and Martin C. Henke, 19, of 1372 Stanford Ave., Upland. Suffering minor injuries were Adkins, Heath and his Sandra Bell, 23, passengers, passengers, and Darrell Bell, 23, both of Long Beach, and Robert Mundowsky of Mt. Baldy.

As other vehicles stopped to aid the injured, the chartered bus driven by Diane M. Miltenberger, 22, of Lakewood, came around the curve but was unable to stop because of overheated brakes. To avoid the five-vehicle pileup, she swung the bus into a dirt turnoff, steered between the wrecked cars and went up onto a rock embankment, finally bringing the bus to a stop 40 feet from a 300-foot cliff.

Before coming to a stop, the bus struck a parked car registered to Alson E. Garver of Glendora and a motorcyle registered to Kenneth Rees, and a pedestrian, Kim Hogg, 21, of San Gabriel, who had been a passenger on the motorcycle. She was knocked to the ground but escaped with minor injuries.

'Turnout' expected in growth workshop

A large turnout is expected today at 7:30 p.m. when the Claremont Foothill Association, the Claremont Civic Association and the Claremont League of Women Voters sponsor a workshop and public hearing on "alternative growth patterns for Los Angeles County."

At the public hearing at the Claremont Public Library, Rudy Lockner of the Regional Planning Commission staff will provide a presentation on growth projections in the county for 1990.

The public will be given an opportunity to give preferences relating to growth patterns.

The county general plan, adopted in 1973, was thrown out by the courts in 1975 because open space designations did not coincide with growth projections for 1990.

The commission now is drawing up a new plan and expects to adopt the plan by July this year.

Public hearings have been scheduled throughout the county, but the east end of the county was overlooked.

Local organizations contacted the county and the public hearing was set up for today.

Travel show set

"This is Egypt", a color travelogue, will be presented by Luben Balabanoff tonight at 7:45 in the Education Center auditorium, 800 S. Garey Ave., Pomona.

Motorcyclist hurt Sunday

A 31-year-old man from Trabuco Canyon was seriously injured when his motorcycle was struck by a car in a dense fog Sunday morning and he was then run over by another car.

The highway patrol reported that Rodney T. Manuel was eastbound on Pomona-Rincon Road crossing the Corona Expressway in the Chino area when his motorcycle was struck broadside by a northbound car.

Dog alerts master to fire

A dog which smelled of smoke warned his owner that Brite-Lite Sign and Electric Co., 1138 W. Second St., Pomona, was on fire early Saturday morning.

Rick Shrede, the occupant, told fire officials he was working very late in the building and was unaware of any trouble until his dog entered the room smelling strongly of smoke.

Shrede opened a door to investigate and found the next room burning. He attempted to remove articles from the building and waited some 15 minutes before calling the fire department.

Meanwhile the fire was reported by a neighbor, Yolanda Martinez.

Fire officials are continuing the investigation of the cause this morning. The loss was placed at $10,000 by officials. Also damaged was the structure at 1132 W. Second St.

Inmates' families find solace, support in Chino group

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

Where does a woman with young children go after her husband, the sole support of the family, suddenly is removed from the streets and placed behind prison walls?

This question is answered by a valley organization called Friends Outside.

"If the community decides a person is to go to prison, the community then has a responsibility to the inmate's family," said Peter Poppleton, the Friends Outside representative at the California Institution for Men (CIM) in Chino.

Poppleton explained that Friends Outside, begun 22 years ago at the Santa Clara County Jail, believes the community does have a responsibility to inmates' families.

"Wives and children are not to blame. They should not be punished for the crimes of their husbands and fathers. We try to help overcome the stigma that too often is attached to the innocent family.

"Mainly, we try to help the families help themselves through a most stressful time.

"We show the families that they are not social outcasts and are not to blame for their mates' mistakes. We try to make their adjustments positive experiences," said Poppleton.

Until recently, Friends Outside had no valley chapter although two of the state's largest prisons are here, including the only womens' prison in the state.

Now a group of Chino residents, including Mrs. Peggy Morris, have formed the West End Friends Outside Chapter. It is headquartered at St. Margaret Mary's Catholic Church, 12686 Central Ave.

Poppleton explained how the program works.

When newly convicted felons are placed in a prison adjustment center, prior to be assigned to a prison, he and other Friends Outside representatives — such as Nickie Carpenter from the California Institution for Women (CIW) — conduct an orientation.

The new prisoners are told they may send their families to Friends Outside for assistance.

This assistance may include providing the families with information on community services available to them, filling out various aid forms, providing transportation to and from the prison on visiting days, locating and sometimes furnishing living quarters and child care on visiting days at the prison.

Poppleton said that a special study made at CIM by Norm Holt revealed that the inmate recidivism rate (those prisoners returning to prison for violating parole or committing other crimes after their releases) dramatically decreased when an incarcerated prisoner had many family visits.

"We want to keep the family together through visits at the prison," he said.

Currently, Friends Outside is expanding its West End program and is in desperate need for volunteers to assist with child care at the prisons.

"It's the volunteers who keep the program going," said Poppleton.

On weekends volunteers assist in caring for the children, giving the inmate and his spouse some time alone, and indirectly aiding the prison officers in controlling the area.

Also, the volunteers make the prison atmosphere less traumatic for the bewildered children through organized playground activities.

Fortunately, at CIM the large playground and visiting area are located some distance from the gray buildings and barred windows associated with prison facilities.

"I can't really explain the good feelings I get working and playing with these children," she said. "It's wonderful."

Friends Outside currently is looking for new volunteers to assist in the child care programs. Anyone interested in providing transportation, donating serviceable toys or helping with playground activities is welcome.

Those interested in volunteering may contact Peggy Morris at the West End Friends Outside office at St. Margaret Mary's Church (in the old rectory) or call 628-6447 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon.

The problem of refugees

In the decades since World War II, the United States has opened its doors to millions of refugees from around the world.

While the numbers are smaller than they were in the aftermath of that war, the Hungarian and Cuban revolutions and, more recently, the fall of Saigon, the flow of refugees continues. So does the work of that great humanitarian organization, the International Rescue Committee.

Last year, the IRC provided emergency assistance and resettlement and other services to refugees from 27 countries. Unfortunately, it reports, its programs were carried out "in a climate of growing insensitivity to refugee rights and refugee needs."

The Hong Kong government, for example, continued to return escapees from China to the mainland. Kurdish refugees were deported to Iraq. Political exiles from Haiti had to resist their expulsion from the United States. Yugoslavia sent escapees back to Albania. And overshadowing all the many instances of violation of refugee rights, says the IRC, was the plight of the "boat people" from Vietnam.

During the second half of 1976, thousands of refugees escaping from Vietnam in small boats became a major concern of the IRC, which says there is no parallel to their flight in its annals, not even escapes by sea from Cuba to the tip of Florida.

The "boat people" must cover long distances through turbulent waters, all the time within range of Vietnamese and Cambodian gunboats. Even more dangerous than the gunboats are typhoons, which one London newspaper says claimed thousands of refugees last year.

In spite of all obstacles, in November alone more than 600 "boat people" reached Thailand, which next to the United States has admitted the greatest number of refugees from Indochina. Others managed to land in Hong Kong, Malaysia and the Philippines, but these countries, and others, are taking increasingly hostile attitudes toward refugees.

A major effort will be required in 1977, says the IRC, to secure acceptance of these refugees by countries around the South China Sea and Gulf of Siam, and by creating a climate of hospitality in other lands, including the United States.

"Because we are free," said President Carter in his inaugural speech, "we can never be indifferent to the fate of freedom elsewhere."

The unspoken corollary to those words, which the International Rescue Committee daily translates into action, is that we can never be indifferent to the fate of the victims of tyranny.

Americans, the freest people on earth, can be proud that they have never been indifferent, when they were aware of the need.

It does pay to read

At a time when we hear so much about the decline in reading ability among the nation's youth, it is good to learn that one organization is successfully motivating children to read books in school systems across the country.

The organization is the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, which for the past two years has been conducting a program called the "MS Read-a-thon."

It works this way: Schoolchildren between the first and eighth grades volunteer to seek sponsors, who pledge 10 cents and up for each book the children read during a four-to-six-week period. The number of books read is verified by teachers and parents and funds collected are used for multiple sclerosis patient services and to support research into the cause and cure of MS, known as the "mysterious crippler of young adults."

Since it began locally in Cleveland in 1974, some $5 million has been raised nationwide through the program.

That's a lot of books, and a lot of kids. In fact, the society says that the hundreds of thousands of youngsters who have participated in the MS Read-a-thon have read more than 10 million books so far.

What people say

"The money that players make these days doesn't bother me. Let them get all they can. I don't blame them. Baseball is business. The trouble was when I was playing, the owners had everybody conned. They kept telling us how lucky we were just to be playing."

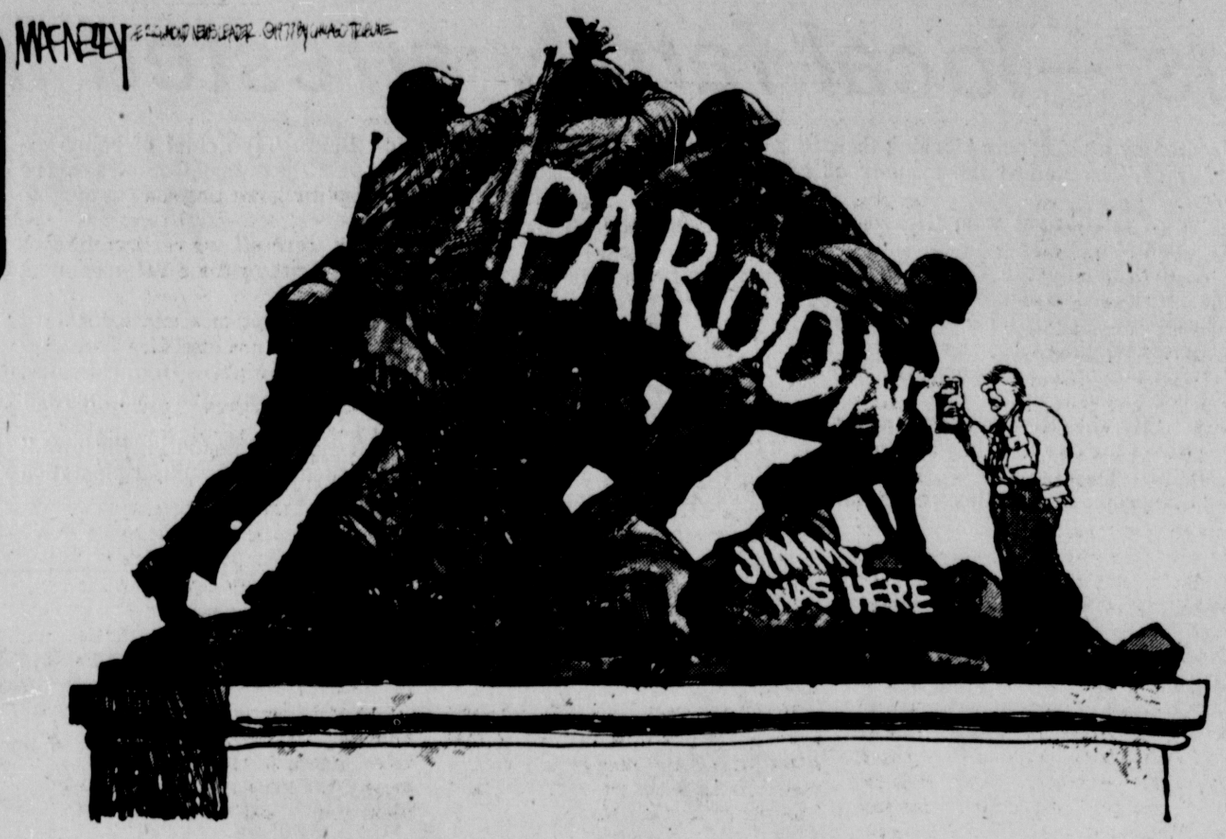

—Sal Maglie, former New York Giant pitching star, who, at 59, is unemployed and living in upstate New York.

"I don't believe an oil price decision should be a factor in ultimate decisions concerning the Middle East."

—President Jimmy Carter on the recent decision by Saudi Arabia to hold down oil prices in exchange for U.S. pressure on Israel to sit down with all Arab factions and hammer out a Mideast peace agreement.

Taiwan not a failure

Dear Editor:

I have been a reader of your paper for some 18 years and feel that I have benefited by so doing. I also wish to compliment you on the splendid items in your paper on foreign countries, especially the Far East. I also happen to be a native of China by birth and spent most of my life as a missionary on the mainland of China and also on the island of Taiwan.

I was very much concerned, however, by an article which appeared in your paper of Jan. 6, I believe it was entitled "Corrupt Officials on Taiwan — Their Days are Numbered" by a correspondent I presume in Taipei. He presented the case against the present government and stated that Chiang Kai-shek's "corrupt officials are living on borrowed time." And intimating that the present administration was not only in for a bad time but would probably be replaced by another (intimating the present regime on the mainland, Communist).

I have visited Taiwan only once since leaving there in 1961 but have kept in touch through the Daily Post (English Edition) and by correspondence and must say that the present regime has made a tremendous success and there is absolutely no indication of its early demise. The entire island of 17 million inhabitants is prospering and have achieved amazing progress. Its exports, largely agricultural, are considerably more in volume than its imports and are actually considerably higher than those of the mainland (Communist China) with its 400 million people. It is rapidly electrifying its entire railway system, is making splendid progress in education in practically every field and is only deserving of the highest praise.

I cannot but feel disturbed at the statements made in this article which would indicate that the whole country was pretty much a failure. I am interested in Nationalist China's progress for I have served that country for some 60 years and have watched its progress with the greatest admiration. On the other hand, mainland, or Red China, is now engaged in revolution and Taiwan has every hope of being able to retake it in the not very distant future. Travelers who have been in mainland China in recent times practically all criticize its failure in practically every field and report the consequent dissatisfaction throughout the country. Refugees are still escaping chiefly through Hong Kong at the rate of nearly 1,000 every month, swimming Bias Bay at the risk of being eaten by sharks or drowning or being shot by guards at the border. At one time I served as general secretary of what was known as "Aid to Chinese Refugee Intellectuals" (most of these refugees were men and women of some education) and resettled approximately 12,000 in Taiwan in various positions and 2,300 in this country where they have made a splendid record. The State Department assisted by a gift of $240,000 to pay for their air transport to the states. Of this money the beneficiaries insisted on repaying as much as they were able — which amounted to 94 per cent of the total paid — after earning a fair living over here. Incidentally, the chairman of the committee over here was none other than Dr. Walter Judd, then congressman and for many years a medical missionary in China.

For the past few years the Chinese government has been responsible for caring for these refugees through a special division. There is much more that I could say in support of such assistance as we have made in the past but time does not permit.

As administrative advisor of the Industrial Cooperative Movement which was concerned chiefly with transporting manufacturing plants from West China to the East during the Japanese invasion of China, I had occasion to make many important observations. I also had the privilege of bringing 20 new trucks and a car over the Burma Road.

Gen. Wedemeyer, one of our greatest military men of all time, was for several years the chief military adviser to Chiang Kai-shek and stated that he found President Chiang a most able and faithful official, and one who was also greatly concerned with the welfare of his subjects. As one time advisor to the President myself, I feel the same. Actually Chiang was one of the greatest chiefs of state of any country in this age.

It, therefore, seems most unfortunate to have an article appearing in your esteemed publication of this nature especially since there seem to be quite a number who are trying to belittle the present regime in Free China by advocating the acknowledgement of the Communist regime. It would indeed be unfortunate if we now recognized their regime and removed our recognition of Nationalist China as they demand.

Secrecy provides cover

WASHINGTON — Our most hush-hush intelligence agency is the National Reconnaissance Office, which operates America's spy satellites. The strict secrecy, however, has provided the NRO's top policymakers with a convenient cover for hiding conflicts of interest.

Our sources estimate that the NRO spends at least $1.5 billion a year. Huge secret contracts are handed out to fortunate, favored companies. Because the spy-in-the-sky technology cannot be revealed for security reasons, the contracting process is hidden from the public.

But we can report a few interesting facts, which have nothing to do with military security:

The NRO draws its top policymakers from the White House, Pentagon and Central Intelligence Agency. One seat on the policy board, for example, is assigned to the undersecretary of the Air Force. In 1973, this sensitive seat went to James Plummer who came to the Air Force from Lockheed Corporation.

At Lockheed, he had been in charge of developing spy satellites. He had an 18-year record of loyalty to the corporation. Then overnight, he was in a position to help determine which companies would get the juicy satellite contracts.

This was an obvious conflict, which was taken up quietly with Senate Armed Services Chairman John Stennis (D.-Miss.). He is known inside the Senate as "The Whitewasher."

In a letter to Stennis, Plummer pledged that he had agreed "to serve as undersecretary for three and one half years minimum." He added solemnly: "I have no agreement, express or implied, with Lockheed and no understanding respecting reemployment." He later repeated both pledges under oath.

Yet last June, Plummer notified his superiors in the Pentagon that he was quitting, although he had served only two and one half, not three and one half years. Thereafter, he returned to the Lockheed payroll as vice president in charge of the corporation's Missiles and Space Company at Sunnyvale, Calif.

While Plummer was riding the merry-go-round between the Pentagon and Lockheed, the corporation was the nation's top spy satellite contractor.

Another passenger on the merry-go-round was Albert Hall, who started out with Martin Marietta from 1958 to 1963. He moved into the Pentagon for the next two years, then back to Martin Marietta from 1965 to 1971. Finally, he returned to the Pentagon again as assistant defense secretary in charge of intelligence.

This position gives Hall a seat on NRO's policy board, where he, too, has influence over the spy satellite program. Martin Marietta, it turns out, builds booster rockets for spy satellites.

Footnote: A Defense Department spokesman said all military contracts are awarded according to law, but he refused to respond to specific questions about the secret reconnaissance contracts.

Plummer was asked to remain at his post, according to the Pentagon, in the interest of continuity. Safeguards were taken to avoid any conflicts, Pentagon officials said. Both Plummer and Hall denied any conflicts; both insisted they were not involved in contract decisions affecting their former companies.

Plummer said he left the Pentagon early to return to Lockheed for "personal" reasons. Hall, currently an Air Force consultant, acknowledged collecting huge termination payments from Martin Marietta while on the Pentagon payroll, but said this was perfectly proper.

SOVIET MARTYR — The Soviet prison system is developing another Soviet martyr. His name is Hillel Butman, a Jew, who had heard about an attempt to hijack an Aeroflot airliner but had not been involved in the plot.

He was arrested anyway, his friends tell us, because he was acquainted with the conspirators and was an active Zionist. Before the Soviet secret police had finished with him, he had been sentenced to 10 years in the bleak Soviet penal system.

It takes rare courage in Russia for a prisoner to speak out against his jailers, who have the power to make his life unbearable. But like Alexander Solzhenitsyn before him, Hillel Butman has dared to defy his oppressors.

He has written a devastating, tongue-in-cheek letter to his warden — the chief of the Perm Soviet labor camp. The unpublished letter reverses their roles, elevating Butman to prison chief and placing the chief in one of Perm's cells.

"Like every healthy Soviet prisoner," Butman explains to his imaginary prisoner, "you have a sick heart, a sick stomach and sick teeth; neurosis, gastritis and paradentesis."

Butman praises the prison harassment, such as the six daily roll calls the prisoners must endure. "Can the prisoners of the Chilean junta expect so much considerate treatment?" he asks sarcastically.

For his insubordination, Butman probably will be shipped to Vladimir prison, the disciplinary camp, where prisoners are kept on a hunger diet, with little heat, no running water and no respite from the 24-hour overhead electric light.

Meanwhile, Butman hasn't seen his wife, Eva, since July, 1973, although Soviet law allows one family visit per year.

We in America, in our Lilliputian practicality and historic good fortune, have evolved a free press to undertake the role that in a tyranny falls to the lonely hero.

Dow and the environment

By EARL G. WATERS

It must indeed have been embarrassing to Gov. Jerry Brown when, at the very time he was visiting Wall Street to assure the moguls of California's healthy business climate, the giant Dow Chemical Co. announced its abandonment of plans for a $500 million petrochemical complex on the upper San Francisco Bay because of "bureaucratic red tape."

The company had acquired 2,700 acres near Collinsville where it planned prolonged jobs for 1,000 construction workers and permanent employment for another 1,000 workers.

But it ran afoul of the laws, mostly involving environmental concerns, which required a multiplicity of permits. Altogether Dow said its plan was subject to obtaining more than 65 permits from 19 different agencies of government. After two years of efforts at a cost of $4 million it had received only four approvals and been rejected by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District despite the fact the estimated pollution factor was well below those of established industries.

Brown was prompt to disclaim blame for the company's decision, declaring that none of the laws "were enacted during my two years in office." While that is true it is also a matter of record that he has generally favored environmental protection laws, and in his two years, has made no effort to bring order out of the chaos which presently exists in the area of clearances for new industrial developments.

Perhaps, in the final analysis, the Dow development should not be permitted for environmental and health reasons. As Sen. John Dunlap righteously maintained, "We should not change our basic laws concerning public health and safety for the benefit of one particular industry." He could well have added "any industry or all of them."

But no enterprise should be made to suffer the expense and delay and made to jump through the hoops of bureaucracy in the manner that Dow experienced. And that is the crux of the issue. Even though it is argued the laws are excessively restrictive, the nub of the matter is, as Sen. John Holmdahl observed, that environmental protection must be exercised "by agencies which act in reasonable and expeditious ways." He commented that "if Dow, with its size and with all its expertise and resources cannot crack through the bureaucratic maze and obstacles of government, then how and when can any lesser developer succeed?"

The answer is they can't, for as Assemblyman Dan Boatwright stated, "red tape and bureaucracy are killing business." That notwithstanding Assemblyman Vic Fazio's view that eight months waiting for a state permit did not constitute an "inordinately long time." Few businesses would agree. Even Bill Press, the governor's research director, concedes the need "for improvement of the entire environmental reviewing process at all levels of government. We must make timely decisions on development proposals."

Legislators now expressing horror at the shadow the Dow withdrawal has cast upon the state as a business locale need not act so innocent. It was their enactments over the past several years which created most of the barriers. Neither does Brown avoid blame. It was his Resources secretary who threw a major roadblock asking the Army Corps of Engineers to delay approval for Dow and raising numerous questions about the project last July.

Boatwright's caustic comment that the environmental laws are an overkill resulting in making the "working man and working woman the endangered species" along with Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally's charge that the Dow case is "a classic example of the insensitivity of the environmental bureaucracy to the needs for jobs and industry in California" are both close to the truth.

Dr. Miller

1/31 Feat. Miller/A second bird

DEAR DR. MILLER: Justin is our very friendly male parakeet. He even comes to us when we let him out. He also has a large vocabulary. We were wondering if we got him a bird friend, would he lose his vocabulary and stop being friendly? Would it be, in other words, a bad move? — T.M.

DEAR T.M.: Yes, such a move could cause complications. If he became jealous, Justin would probably pick on his feathered "friend," and budgie battles wouldn't contribute to happiness. Conversely, if Justin approved of the newcomer, then he would indeed turn his attention in that direction and, at least to some degree, his contacts and communication with you would suffer. Since he's such a good pet now, you and Justin would probably remain better buddies without a new budgie to botch things up.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We've been talking about getting Junior in for his booster shots, we knew they were due, but hadn't. So then when my husband was out of town, I did it and Junior didn't even yelp. I forgot to tell my husband so a week later he did it on his own (he never does things like this). He took Junior in to a new hospital, and had booster shots given again. Poor Junior, he still acts all right. Is there any danger from the extra shot? — C.A.

DEAR C.A.: You needn't worry. A canine (or feline for that matter) receiving extra booster vaccinations would not be injured by them. As far as routine vaccinations are concerned, it's far better to get one too many than one too few. People occasionally delay booster vaccinations because they've lost records or moved or for whatever reason. In such a case, it's far better to give boosters too early than too late.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Maudlin, our cat, was just starting to nibble on ornithogalum umbellatum. What if I hadn't been there? Aside from the poor plant, would it have made any difference? — S.T.

DEAR S.T.: Could have. The Star of Bethlehem is an ornamental plant containing potentially dangerous amounts of alkaloids. There are many types of poisons in plants. The list of those plants containing toxic alkaloids runs from amaryllis to yew.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The little things will cause rumbles around your home today, so skirt these inconsequential items.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The clever ideas you have today could lose something in the translation. If you have something complicated to explain, spell it out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your ability to earn money is good today, but you're still trying to spend it faster than you make it. Work to get your books in balance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others will be making decisions for you today and you have only yourself to blame. If you don't look out for your best interests, expect them to.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 2) It's very difficult for you to keep a secret today. You'll compound the error by telling it to the wrong party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friends may obtain things that make you envious today because they've accumulated a little surplus. Don't try to keep up. You'll break the bank.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Making money comes easy to you today, but you may have to use methods not in harmony with your principles. Weigh gains against reputation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today, you'll be kind and considerate toward new acquaintance. Old friends could be miffed if they feel you've been less considerate of them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you grasp situations quickly, but not with sufficient depth. You could be outclassed by someone with greater perception.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There are friends working in your behalf today, but there are others who would like to see you flop. You've had trouble with them before.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're a good starter today, but a poor finisher. If everything doesn't fall into place at once, you're ready to throw in the towel.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't ask favors of new friends today or you could nip some promising relationships in the bud. Wait until you get to know them a lot better.

Your Birthday, Feb. 1, 1977

New paths will open for you this coming year to give greater impetus to your ambitions. You might even employ ingenious new methods you're not presently aware of.

Ann Landers

The empty nest syndrome

Dear Ann Landers: My youngest child is in school all day and I'm beginning to feel depressed. I thought I'd love all this spare time — in fact, I looked forward to it — but I confess I'm suffering from "The Empty Nest Syndrome."

I have a Master's degree in English and could teach, but I don't want a full-time job. I must be free to take trips with my husband. I want to do volunteer work — but what?

I can't knit or sew or type. But I'm in excellent health and I'm good with people. Can you suggest something I might do that will make me feel good about myself? I need to feel useful. Hurry your answer. I'm — Getting Fridgety

Dear Fridge: Have I got a suggestion for you! Your timing couldn't have been better. Call the American Cancer Society (look in the phone book) and volunteer to help with the 1977 Crusade. The campaign has just been launched and they need people like you.

Cancer is the most feared word in the language. The life of every person who reads this column has been touched, in some way, by this dreaded disease. The American Cancer Society needs all the help it can get. Call today and volunteer your services. You must have ESP, lady.

Dear Ann Landers: I will be retiring next year and am dead set against any kind of farewell affair. I'm a very nervous person and something of this nature would undo me completely.

My fellow employes insist that I deserve a party and they are determined to give me one. They say I will cherish the memory forever and I will get over the nervousness once the group has gathered. I know myself better than they do. I shall become physically sick and unable to attend.

We all read your column daily and I am praying you will consider this letter important enough to print. I need you to be on my side. — Can't Face It In Spgfld., Mass.

Dear Face: Here's an open letter to your fellow employes:

Dear Group: I know you mean well, but please make his (or her) last days in the office pleasant ones by respecting the request.

When you see this letter, tell the nervous retiree you've decided to leave the gift on the desk — no formal presentation — just an extra handshake, a hug or a kiss at the end of the day. Believe me, THAT will be the best gift of all.

Dear Ann Landers: I just want you to know you saved my life. If I hadn't read about Recovery, Inc., in your column I never would have survived the Christmas holidays.

Whoever said Christmas is the season to be jolly must have been nuts. It's the most agonizing time of the year for many people. For me it was a horror. I was sad, irritable, cried a lot, felt alone and got a dreadful cold.

I went to Recovery, Inc., and met some terrific people. They gave me love, strength, self-assurance and showed me the way to mental health. Bless you — and them. — New Life

Dear Life: Let's hear it again for Recovery, Inc.! It's listed in the phone book — and it's free. Go if you need emotional support — for any reason. They are waiting for you.

The great midnight raid

Oft in the silly night, e'er slumber's chain has crowned me, I find myself lying awake staring into the darkness, trying to picture the inside of our refrigerator.

For a man who can hardly remember the names of his children, I have an astonishing memory for what leftovers and assorted goodies are stashed in the old reefer. Total recall, you might say. So I lie there wetting my lips and taking inventory of the shelves.

Things get more interesting on the next shelf down. There are little plastic bowls of chili beans, cold peas, "a dab," as my wife calls it, of noodles and cheese, and one or two of those mysterious plates covered with a soft green mold, a culture that the lady of the house apparently raises.

Next shelf down — aha! Now we're getting somewhere. I begin to drool. Here are packages of liverwurst and salami, swiss cheese, a cold chop. That small chunk of steak may still be there — if I hurry. Down below these yummies comes the rabbit food — lettuce, celery, cabbage, tomatoes — that roughage you munch while waiting for your dessert.

My mind's eye, which in these periods of nocturnal famine functions with the precision of an aerial camera over Moscow, accurately recalls bacon, eggs, fruit cocktail, apple mint jelly, and a jar of icky-looking candy made by our Junior Miss a few years ago. No wonder she flunked home economics.

Now I plan the menu for my midnight raid. Ham and eggs? Too much trouble. Besides I had that for breakfast. Heat up the chili? Warm over the noodles? Crack a can of fruit cocktail? They all sound pretty good, but — no, tonight calls for a fat, indigestible sandwich: liverwurst and swiss cheese on rye, with plenty of mustard and a side of Dill pickles. Yum! I climb eagerly out of bed.

The scene that greets me when I arrive in my kitchen at 1 a.m. is strongly reminiscent of Egypt after the plague of locusts. Other members of the family have had their midnight snacks before me, and the once shiny kitchen looks like the aftermath of a bomb explosion in a delicatessen. Empty milk bottles abound. The catsup is out, the mustard jar. The pickles are gone, and the rye bread used up. There's no more liverwurst and only a solitary stiff piece of swiss cheese. The succulent chunk of steak? I don't even bother to look.

It's just terrible what kids put in their stomachs late at night. I'll have to speak to them about it in the morning.

Meanwhile I settle for a peanut butter-and-jelly sandwich and trudge dolefully back upstairs.

Dr. Lamb

Unexplained loss of weight

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has been losing weight so fast the last two years that he has lost 40 pounds. He eats well and sleeps well. You can count his ribs.

The doctor doesn't seem to know what causes him to lose weight. He had a physical not long ago. I am so worried, afraid of cancer. My first husband died from cancer. His head hurts in the back. Could it possibly be a tapeworm?

DEAR READER — Weight loss follows the same principles of weight gain. Your body uses as many calories of energy a day as it needs to maintain itself and the number of calories used to do physical work of various types. If you take in more calories than your body uses you store the excess energy as fat. If you use more energy than you take in you deplete the energy stored as body fat. After the fat is gone you start using the muscles for body energy.

Anyone who has unexplained weight loss must have an examination. The most common cause is an inadequate diet — not taking in enough calories. After that you need to look at problems that prevent absorbing your food — that literally prevent the calories of energy from ever getting into your body. A host of intestinal problems are in this category, including parasites which could be worms. Worms still exist in a surprising number of people but a simple stool examination and competent examination of the digestive system will demonstrate them.

The calories may be lost from the body in the urine, as in a diabetic losing sugar in the urine to cause weight loss.

If you are eating enough, absorbing the calories and not losing them, the next problem could be things that increase the body's use of calories. This includes an overactive thyroid gland that is like turning up the thermostat causing the body cells to use lots more energy and release more heat. These individuals usually eat a lot and still lose weight.

The infectious diseases, including tuberculosis, cause tissue destruction and in the replacement process you use more calories. The increased heat production with a fever and the repair processes use calories. That is why you are correct in feeding a fever. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-6 Body Temperature and Fever, to give you more information on this. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

Cancer can be a cause of weight loss and is one reason why anyone with this problem deserves a complete examination. The cancer cells multiply and form new growth. New growth requires energy. The best example here is the energy consumption of the growing child. It takes energy to hook together the chemical compounds that form new tissue. In cancer the combination of new growth and cell destruction may lead to rapid weight loss.

You didn't say how old your husband is, but occasionally disease of the arteries supplying the digestive system prevents it from functioning normally and prevents absorption of food. Pancreatic disease may also affect absorption. You might talk with your doctor again and see if he has any further suggestions. You may need to talk with a nutritionist to be sure he is really getting enough calories in the kind of food he eats, if there are no medical reasons for his loss of weight.

Jim: "When was the forcing two-bid invented and who was responsible?"

Oswald: "The year was 1929 and there were three of us — Ted Lightner, Waldemar von Zedwitz and myself. Our three basic concepts were: It should include so many high cards that there would be a danger a non-forcing bid would be passed. It should be within one trick of game. There should be distinct slam possibilities."

Jim: "Those are still valid. How about the bust response of two notrump?"

Oswald: "That was our idea also, but it wasn't as good as it might have been. Nevertheless it got into standard American bidding and is probably there to stay."

Jim: "If South opens today's hand with a forcing two bid, North responds two notrump, South raises to three, West opens the queen of hearts and if the defense doesn't block the suit they gather in five quick heart tricks."

Oswald: "That is why the correct opening bid with this South hand is three notrump. Nothing can hurt him and if a heart is opened he will have 10 top tricks."

Ask the Jacobys

A Minnesota reader sent us the hand in today's article. He asked if we would open it with a forcing two bid. This article answers his question. Avoid forcing two bids with notrump type hands if possible.

Don Prudhomme turned in a 247.25 MPH run, the fastest ever in the Funny Car division, in Sunday's finals of the NHRA Winternationals at the L.A. County Fairgrounds.

PB Correspondent

Don Prudhomme, who turned in an astonishing speed of 247.25 miles per hour in a Funny Car Sunday, said it best about Jerry Ruth's Top Fuel upset victory over Don Garlitts: "Now we can officially call him 'The King.'"

Ruth's stunning upset of Garlits in the 17th annual Winternationals began to take shape in the very first elimination round as Top Fuel favorite Shirley Muldowney was defeated by unheralded Rance McDaniel of Fresno. Her defeat was attributed to a $1.15 part which caused her pink dragster to lose its horsepower.

Prudhomme as expected wrapped up his third consecutive Funny Car title at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds' track. It was his first victory in his brand new Plymouth Arrow which is replacing last year's Chevy Monza.

In the other racing categories. Larry Lombardo of Malvern, Pa., increased his speed record he set Saturday at 159.01 to 159.29 MPH early Sunday afternoon as he took the Pro Stock title from Don Nicholson of Orange.

Davey Settles, who is from Euless, Tex., nursed a sick engine to the Pro Comp title; John Lingenfeller of Hoagland, Ind., took the Competition title; the Modified crown went to Tony Christian of Arlington Heights, Ill.; Super Stock went to Dave Boertman of Muskegon, Mich.; and Chad Langdon of Garden Grove won the Stock division.

The anticipated clash between Garlits and Ms. Muldowney was canceled but the large crowd of about 30,000 didn't care as they rooted for Ruth to best Garlits. Pandemonium broke out at the Fairgrounds from the grandstands and press room as Ruth crossed the finish line with Garlits far behind him.

Ruth, the 1973 World Champion and runner-up at the 1974 Winternationals, crossed the finish line at 230 MPH with an elapsed time of 5.99. Garlits lost traction half way down the track as his tires began to smoke. He finished at 6.38 as it was only his fourth loss in 19 National Hot Rod Association final round appearances.

"I pretty much played my game against Garlits, "explained the Seattlean. "I try not to make a point of psyching out a rival at the starting line but I wanted to take Garlits."

He added, "We tried not to hurt our engine if we could before the finals and we didn't. The only parts we replaced all day were a couple of pistons."

Ruth to get to the finals defeated Hank Johnson, who fouled by jumping the green light, James Warren and McDonald before taking on the four-time Winternational champ Garlits.

"I treat a race as one round at a time, "noted Ruth. "I've never done well at a National event unless I've driven against the top shooters like Garlits, Beck, or Warren.

"If I'd been pitted against the easy guys today, I'd probably would have lost as I usally do against lesser competitors."

He went on to explain, "There's a lot of mutual respect between us because Garlits knows I'm a veteran and a top driver in Top Fuel competition. I'm sure he wouldn't have chosen me as a final competitor if he could have picked out a rival to run in the final race."

With a chuckle Ruth said, "And I certainly wouldn't have picked him."

Prudhomme destroyed another existing barrier Sunday as he shattered the Funny Car speed record of 241.53. It was the fastest that a Funny Car has ever traveled in the history of the NHRA. No one dreamed that anyone could drive a Funny Car at 247 MPH which is in the speed range run by the Top Fuel dragsters. He believes that the day will come when a funny car runs 250 mph.

"Everytime we ran the car we took all the pistons out and checked them," acknowledged a smiling Prudhomme. "In the semifinal run the car ran a 6.29 which wasn't very good. We took the engine apart and really couldn't find anything wrong besides not having enough nitro.

"We really loaded the car up with the nitromethane fuel," chuckled Prudhomme. "I just kind of ducked going down the track with it.

"We put 90 per cent nitro-methane in the new car. It's a tremendous amount and I didn't expect the car to get as far as it did. Fortunately the nitro didn't start eating at the pistons until we got going down the track."

Prudhomme left Raymond Beadle in the dust as his '77 Arrow zipped down the track ahead of the famed "Blue Max" car. When Prudhomme left the starting line, the crowd knew Prudhomme had turned in an incredible performance.

He added, "We took a chance adding the extra nitro but we took a gamble in bringing the car to the Winternationals in the first place.

"We tested the car Wednesday for the first time and the runs were terrible. We had to make a heck of a decision whether to run the Monza or the new car. But we made the right decision in using the Plymouth Arrow."

It was the third final-round meeting bewteen "The Snake" and Beadle in NHRA competition. Prudhomme holds a 2-1 edge on "The Blue Max".

Jerry Darien of Pomona was ousted in the opening Pro Comp elimination round as his Donovan propelled dragster jumped off to a fast start on a red light.

Brad Anderson of Covina made it to the third round before being defeated by Settles, who went on to take the Pro Comp crown. Glendora's Gary Southern lost to Don Enriquez in second round action. Southern lost out by a tenth of a second.

Sunday was an accident-free day for the Winternationals as the large crowd brought the four day total to 58,493.

"Dale's Dyno" Pro Comp alcohol dragster owned by Dale Smart of Compton and driven by Southern of Glendora took a special award as having the best appearing sportsman crew.

Lakers win on 'down night'

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD — The Lakers and the visiting New Orleans Jazz played an "L" of a basketball game Sunday night.

The Lakers were lethargic and the Jazz was listless, both to an extreme.

As a result, the Lakers' 19th straight victory at the Forum did not come easy. The Angelenos had to struggle and come from behind to squeeze out a 101-99 win over a team that has now lost 10 in a row on the road.

The Jazz had an excuse. The Lakers had none. The visitors were playing their third game in three nights and fourth of a six-game road trip.

Furthurmore, New Orleans was without the services of three players, guards Gail Goodrich (out for the season) and Fred Boyd and swingman Aaron James.

That might have been one reason why McElroy missed two free throws with 35 seconds left in the game and the Jazz trailing by only one point, 99-98.

After Don Ford's 16-foot jumper put the Lakers ahead to stay, 99-98, with 48 seconds remaining, Earl Tatum fouled McElroy who blew the free throws.

Then Maravich fouled Tatum with nine seconds left and the "Western Pearl" sank them both to make it 101-98. The Lakers took a time out and coach Jerry West told everybody NOT to foul.

So Maravich drove to the basket and Kareem Abdul Jabbar fouled him. Maravich made one free throw and bounced the second off the backboard hoping for a New Orleans rebound.

But Jabbar rebounded only to have his outlet pass intercepted by Williams whose final shot fell short.

"We didn't play very well as you're all aware," grumped West in the post-game gathering. "I don't know why, but we weren't ready to play and when you're not ready, you are not going to accomplish much.

"Our offense wasn't very good because we weren't moving. We're converting on fast breaks like a junior high school team. Kareem finally came to life in the fourth quarter."

Jabbar scored 13 of his 27 points in the final stanza. But for the second game in a row, the giant center went a full quarter, in this case the third, without scoring.

West made the excuse for Jabbar (and he was right) that Jabbar has so many people around him, it's difficult to score. The problem was nobody else seemed to even want to shoot while Jabbar was being blanked.

The Lakrs took only 16 shots in the period (compared to 30 for New Orleans) and hit on nine. The Jazz outscored the Angelenos, 28-22, to take a 76-72 lead after three quarters.

Don Chaney was the brightest spot. Chaney scored a career-high 16 points and did an excellent job guarding Maravich.

Maravich scored a game-high 29 points. But he connected on only five of 21 shots (he was 11-for-33 in the game) against Chaney.

Pomona athletics will miss Hoehn

When Pomona-Pitzer plays Claremont-Mudd Saturday, it will, in a way, mark the end of an era.

Bob Hoehn will be playing his last game for the Sagehens. For four years, Bob has been deeply involved in Pomona College athletics.

His story is worth telling.

Not only because he has been a starter or top reserve in both basketball and baseball all four years. Nor because he has also been the full time trainer for the soccer team for the same period.

It isn't only because he is graduating with a B (or slightly above) average. Or because he is 28 years old.

A good part of the delay in completing his education is due to a hitch in the Navy. He came out of that with the Vietnamese Service Ribbon, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry, the Bronz Star (with cluster) and the Purple Heart not to mention a number of inner scars.

His education was also delayed because at one time he dropped out of school (not Pomona) altogether. That was at Grand Canyon College in Phoenix, Ariz.

"I went there to play basketball," he recalled. "But the year (1969) I got there, they had all kinds of financial trouble and scratched the freshman programs in basketball and baseball.

Was disenchanted

"I was very disenchanted for several reasons. I had gone to high school (in Tucson) where they had 4200 students. The entire student body at Grand Canyon was smaller than my (high school) graduating class.

"Also, it was a Southern Baptist college and very strict. There really wasn't much to do anyway. A couple of times some of us went out dancing after hours. Dancing was against their religious code anyway and we were reprimanded."

So young Hoehn went back to Tucson and sold suits for Sears Roebuck. He turned out to be a good salesman. But he wasn't happy.

"I didn't have anyplace to go in my life," he said.

So he joined the Navy and after a year in the reserves, he was sent to a Pensacola, Fla. communications school.

At Pensacola he played his first organized basketball and in his second year, the team won the All-Navy tournament for that area. After that he was supposed to be sent to Japan, but a change of orders rerouted him to Vietnam via survivor school in the Everglades.

That was where he acquired the nickname, "Snake."

"We had to eat everything raw," he explained, "and I found out I enjoyed raw snake."

In Vietnam he was a member of a long distance reconnaissance patrol for the First Marine Division.

That involved being dropped into an area by helicopter for a patrol lasting from three days to two weeks to pick targets for air strikes. They would remain in the area until the strike was completed and then report the damage.

Two poisoned, died

On one patrol, the group drank some poisoned water. Two died and two others, including Hoehn, were hospitalized for several months.

Back in action, he got to within one month of going home when, in Da-Nang, a rocket shell landed behind him.

Hoehn was blown into the air and landed on his face. He was unconscious two days. When he awoke it was to find that his nose was smashed flat against his face and eight teeth were broken.

Surgeons rebuilt the nose working from photographs and performed root canals on his teeth. He also had two steel bars inserted in his nose.

It doesn't take much of a bump to get a nose bleed now. A sneeze will do it or even blowing his nose will start it off.

But it was in Vietnam that he made a decision on the direction of his life.

"My father wrote and told me I should be thinking about what I wanted to do," he related. "I wanted to go back to school. I think I realized there was no way I could do what I wanted to do, be as successful as I wanted to be, without going back to college.

"I also wanted to play in sports. Life expectancy in Vietnam was very short sometimes. So I told myself that if I were able to live the rest of my life, I'd never waste another minute."

Poly, Leos vie tonight

Neighbors La Verne College and Cal Poly Pomona will try to use tonight's basketball game at Poly's Kellogg Gym as a tonic to get things together.

Both teams are experiencing rough seasons and a victory in this evening's non-conference game could help right the ship.

Poly is 8-11 for the season after Saturday's humiliating 76-61 loss to Cal State Bakersfield at home while La Verne is only 5-13.

Upland gets shot at SAL leaders

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

With six games left for each San Antonio League team, the top three squads in the standings seem to have a bead on the three playoff spots that the CIF will probably award the league.

Damien (8-0), Ganesha (7-1) and Garey (6-2) are well out in front of the pack after eight league contests.

SAL

	League W	League L	League Pct.	Overall W	Overall L
Damien	8	0	1.000	11	6
Ganesha	7	1	.875	17	4
Garey	6	2	.750	12	6
Upland	4	4	.500	14	7
Chino	3	5	.375	7	12
Montclair	3	5	.375	8	11
Claremont	1	7	.125	10	10
Pomona	0	8	.000	2	14

Tuesday's games
Chino at Montclair, 4:45 p.m.
Ganesha at Claremont, 4:45 p.m.
Upland at Damien, 4:45 p.m.
Pomona at Garey, 4:45 p.m.

Upland (4-4) is perhaps the only team in the league with a reasonable chance of muscling into the top three, and the Highlanders shouldn't have to wait long to find out whether they can.

The Highlanders will travel to Damien to meet the first-place Spartans Tuesday at 4:45 p.m. Their next two contests will be against the Giants and the Vikings — the former at Ganesha and the latter in the Highlander gym.

Tuesday's other SAL games will find Pomona at Garey, Ganesha at Claremont and Chino at Montclair, all at 4:45 p.m.

Upland is riding a three-game win streak — but then the Scots have played none of the leaders in that span. Those wins have been over Chino, Pomona and Claremont, teams which trail Upland in the standings.

Obviously, the Highlanders will have to beat some of the top teams to rise to a playoff position. In fact, they will probably have to win at least two of their next three games.

Damien handled the Scots pretty easily last time around (the score was 68-55), but the undefeated Spartans have had rough going lately. In four of their last five games, they have trailed at some point in the fourth quarter, but so far their poise — and Bill Duffy — has pulled them through.

"We've been playing well enough not to lose instead of well enough to win," quipped Spartan coach Bill Roberts Friday after a late rally enabled his squad to beat upset-minded Montclair.

UCLA plays like champs

ATLANTA (AP) — Gene Bartow hopes it was only a dress rehearsal for his eighth-ranked UCLA Bruins.

"I'll be back here in March," the Bruin coach said Sunday. "I hope our team will be back too."

Bartow had just watched UCLA crush seventh-ranked Tennessee 103-89 in a nationally televised game at the Omni, site of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's basketball championship tournament in March.

The Bruins, playing with the poise that helped the school capture 10 national titles since 1964, had little trouble with the Vols, who entered the game with a 12-game winning streak.

But UCLA never trailed and easily overcame the only Tennessee threat when the Vols closed a 15-point deficit to only four points, 56-52, early in the second half.

Sophomore David Greenwood quickly hammered in three straight 20-footers from the top of the circle to trigger a 31-18 spurt that put the game on ice at 87-70 with 6:50 remaining.

"We can't shoot much better than we shot," said Bartow. The Bruins hit 59 per cent for the game and the three big scorers connected on 69 per cent — Roy Hamiton pouring in 30 points, Marques Johnson 24 and Greenwood 22.

"I was hoping we would play as well as we did," Bartow said. "We beat an awfully good team. It was a gruelling game and our depth was definitely a factor."

It was the sixth consecutive triumph for UCLA, 16-2, and their second in a row on national television following last Sunday's 70-65 decision at Notre Dame.

"I think we've got a chance," Bartow said of returning with his team for the NCAA tournament. "But there are a lot of great teams in the West. They talk about all the great teams in the East and Mideast, but they better think about some of those in the West."

UCLA bolted to an early 6-1 lead, stretched it to 11 points in the first six minutes and had a 40-25 advantage with just under seven minutes left in the half.

Tennessee cut the margin to 56-52 with 16:48 to play on a three-point play by Olympian Ernie Grunfeld — but the Vols never got closer.

Bernard King led Tennessee with 31 points and Grunfeld, who fouled out with 5:14 left, added 23.

"We haven't played anyone as awesome as they are," said Vol Coach Ray Mears. "I haven't seen a better team than UCLA looked today. They are great athletes and their ability didn't surprise me at all.

"When UCLA is fired up, it is a great basketball team, and they were fired up today," he added.

"I hope our team will react to this by taking it in stride," Mears said. "Being on TV didn't hurt us — UCLA did."

Whiz Kid Cauthen rides three winners

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Whiz Kid Steve Cauthen has treated West Coast fans to a bit of the riding magic that has made him the nation's leading jockey, bringing in three winners in five mounts at Santa Anita.

The 16-year-old apprentice jockey flew into California for Sunday's San Marcos Handicap, but was thrown by by his mount, Announcer. Cauthen, who was unhurt in the incident, rode three of his other mounts into the winner's circle Sunday.

Veteran Bill Shoemaker had a chance to show a little magic of his own, bringing Royal Derby II from last to win the featured $56,650 San Marcos. The eight-year-old favorite ran the 1¼-mile turf course in 1:58 1-5, paying $7.40, $4.20 and $3.40.

Royal Derby II, carrying top weight of 124 pounds, came from behind to beat Anne's Pretender by nearly two lengths. Anne's Pretender paid $5.00 and $4.80, and third place-finisher Tedy's Courage paid $10.40.

Cauthen had three winners and a second Sunday, continuing the winning ways that earned him stardom in the East. He rode into the winner's circle with Highland Light in the second race, Faliraki in the sixth and Sky Charger in the ninth race.

He finished second in the seventh event aboard Life's Hope.

On Saturday, Uniformity scored his second consecutive upset victory in the current meet, responding to Fernando Toro's ride to take the $57,500 San Pasqual Handicap.

Uniformity, carrying 117 pounds, ran the mile and one-sixteenth race in a blazing 1:41 flat. The longshot winner paid $17.20, $8.40 and $7.00.

Finishing second was Distant Land, who paid $4.20 and $3.60. Pisistrator finished third and paid $6.80.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "Well," sighed vete

Bob's father suggested half a dozen schools and Hoehn eventually wound up at Pomona College. But it wasn't easy.

"My high school track record and the year at Grand Canyon were not good at all," he related. "I really didn't expect to get in.

"But the people here said that due to the circumstances of my life, they'd like to see me admitted as a student under special standing (academic probation) to see if I could handle the work load."

Hoehn arrived in Sept., 1973. Lost army records resulted in difficulty with the G.I. Bill and no checks arrived until January.

The school agreed to wait for the tuition money and Athletic Director Ed Malan helped the young veteran obtain a job as trainer (Hoehn had an advanced first aid card).

About the same time Bob started to school, Debbie Voss (now Debbie Hoehn) started to work as a secretary in the athletic department. A year later they were married.

"I can't say enough about my four years here," Hoehn said quietly. "I owe the school and coach Malan so much. Ever since my enlistment in the Navy, things have happened to me that are momentous in my life.

"Obviously the Vietnam experience will live with me the rest of my life. The four years with the people here at Pomona College, the professors, coaches, students and athletes . . . I can't believe I've been lucky enough to have experienced it.

"And I honestly don't believe that I could have done as well if it hadn't been for athletics and for my wife. Both of them have kept me sane."

Hoehn admits it was difficult to fit in because he was several years older than the rest of the students. But it has all worked out to everyone's satisfaction.

Besides maintaining a B average, Bob received the Coaches' Award in basketball for hustle and most improvement in a given season. In baseball he was named Most Inspirational Player.

"Since that (Most Inspirational) was voted by the other players, it was the finest honor I've ever received," he said.

Played 3B and catcher

Hoehn was first a third baseman then a catcher on the baseball team. In his last year he batted .318. The thought of getting away from sports disturbs him.

"I hope to playbasketball somewhere in an industrial league," he admitted. "One thing I defenitely plan on is getting into officiating.

"Sports has done a lot for me. It's helped me keep my sanity in a school where I really didn't fit in to begin with. There's a need for officials who understand the game (of basketball) as it is played now. I think that's a big service for the game itself."

That will be in his spare time. Bob has landed a job with SAFECO, a Seattle (Wash.) based insurance company starting as an adjuster.

"I majored in history," he grinned. "All my life I've loved history. But that's the one thing you can't find a job in to save your life.

"But this job is a great one. It's the bottom rung in their management training program which is one of the best in the industry."

Hoehn will work out of the Covina office until March when he goes to Seattle for a month of training. He'll return in April just in time for the baby he and Debbie are expecting.

It's been a long, hard road. One that started back in Tucson where Bob worked while attending high school. "I didn't play in any sports," he recalled. "I was growing so fast (three inches in one month) I tripped over painted lines."

At first he worked as a stagehand for the Tucson Symphony Orchestra four days a week and as a YMCA Janitor weekends. Summers, he worked at the "Y" full time. As a senior he went to school from 6 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and worked as a Cub reporter (Arizona Daily Star) from 1 p.m. to 2 a.m.

As I said, his age is an embarrassment to him. It shouldn't be. Bob Hoehn has much of which to be proud.

Sports briefs

Gushiken rallied from a third-round knockdown and from cuts over both eyes to gain the decision. After staying down for the mandatory eight count in the third, Gushiken came back strongly in the fourth and appeared in control of the bout through the final five rounds of the 15-rounder.

"I suffered from cuts over my two eyes, but the cuts were due to Rios' butting and overhead swings," said Gushiken. "It was a good thing that I changed my strategy from the 10th round. Rios was a tough fighter."

Harmodio Icaza, Rios' comanager, was upset with the decision and said he planned to lodge a protest with the WBA.

"It's a very bad decision," said Icaza. "Rios scored a knockdown and cuts over both eyes of Gushiken. Rios won 10 rounds and it's impossible that he lost."

The Japanese judge gave the fight to Gushiken. The Panamanian judge awarded it to Rios. Referee Rudy Ortega of Oakland, Calif., broke the tie by scoring it 70-67 for the 21year-old champion.

Chubby Cox hero for fortunate USF

By The Associated Press

Chubby Cox isn't one of the more heralded members of the University of San Francisco's 21-0, top-ranked basketball team, averaging less than 10 points a game in a playmaking role.

But the junior transfer from Villanova is a hero today after giving USF a 71-70 victory over Santa Clara in a game in which the Dons looked nothing like the national champions they hope to be.

Cox scored 10 points in the first half to keep USF in the game, although the team trailed 39-26 at halftime, then banked in a six-footer with two seconds left to win the game.

"We didn't have a play called," said Bob Gaillard, coach of the nation's only unbeaten major college team. "I just told them to get it down to the hoop. I'm just thankful we got it to the right guy."

"We deserved to win that game," said Santa Clara Coach Carroll Williams. "We outplayed them in every respect of the game." It was no exaggeration.

San Francisco shot a miserable 30 of 87 from the field, 34 per cent, while Santa Clara sank half its shots, 29 of 58, and trailed until less than six minutes were left in the game.

With eight seconds left and the Broncos leading 70-69, USF fouled center Kurt Rambis in an attempt to get the ball. Rambis missed his shot, the ball was knocked out of bounds and USF passed in to Cox, who dribbled the full length of the court and swished his two-pointer.

"I almost forgot about those buckets in the first half," said Cox. "All I can remember now is that last one. I'll remember that one the rest of my life."

In a Pacific-8 game Saturday, Washington gained a share of the league lead with a 71-68 defeat of Washington State

In other games involving Pac-8 teams, No. 8 ranked UCLA tripped No. 7 Tennessee 103-89, Stanford lost to Utah State 103-84 and St. Johns beat Oregon 61-51 in non-conference meetings.

In the PCAA, Long Beach State slipped by San Diego State 85-83 and Fullerton State edged Fresno State 72-70.

76ers extra tough when game's on TV

By Associated Press

"You can't play for three quarters and expect to win against good teams," says Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue. So his 76ers went out and played for four quarters — and beat a very good team.

The 76ers, who have won 11 of their last 14 games and opened a 7½-game lead in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division, invaded Denver's McNichols Arena Sunday and stunned the sellout crowd of 17,879 by beating the Nuggets 107-101.

The game began at 11:45 local time for television purposes, and that was a bit too early for Nuggets Coach Larry Brown.

"We're not used to playing at that hour of the morning," cracked Brown. "We're churchgoers."

It was Philadelphia's fourth TV game this season — and fourth victory. Lloyd Free led the 76ers with 33 points and George McGinnis had 31 points and 12 rebounds.

The victory, in the matchup between the teams with the best record in each conference, was the 76ers' 12th road triumph in 25 games — the best mark in the NBA. And it was only Denver's third home loss in 27 games.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, the Milwaukee Bucks beat the New York Nets 100-92, the Golden State Warriors defeated the Boston Celtics 109-92, the San Antonio Spurs edged the Seattle SuperSonics 126-118 in overtime, the Detroit Pistons trimmed the Indiana Pacers 127-120, the Washington Bullets beat the Kansas City Kings 112-98, the Portland Trail Blazers downed the Phoenix Suns 97-91 and the Los Angeles Lakers edged the New Orleans Jazz 101-99.

The 76ers hit 66 per cent of their field goal attempts in the first half for a 61-53 lead and never were caught. The Nuggets got 26 points from Dan Issel and 25 from Bobby Jones.

Two of the featured players were hardly factors in the game. David Thompson scored 18 for Denver and Julius Erving managed only eight for Philadelphia.

Bucks 100, Nets 92

Former Nets player Swen Nater scored 20 points and grabbed 18 rebounds, helping Milwaukee erase a seven-point fourth-quarter deficit and hand New York its 16th loss in the last 17 games.

Warriors 109, Celtics 92

Golden State's guards did the most damage to the Celtics, Phil Smith scoring 35 points and Gus Williams 20. The Warriors outscored Boston 30-16 in the fourth quarter, dealing the Celtics their fifth loss in the last six games.

Spurs 126, Sonics 118, OT

San Antonio outscored Seattle 20-12 in overtime, Larry Kenon and George Gervin combining for 18 of those points. Gervin led all scorers with 42 points, while Slick Watts had 30 for Seattle.

Pistons 127, Pacers 120

Bullets 112, Kings 98

Washington won its eighth in a row as Phil Chenier scored 26 points, Elvin Hayes 24 and rookie Mitch Kupchak 22. The Bullets took a 57-41 halftime lead and coasted to their 14th victory in the last 16 starts.

Trail Blazers 99, Suns 91

Portland, playing without star center Bill Walton, who was injured, got balanced scoring, led by Maurice Lucas' 21 points, in winning its 25th home game at home against only one loss. Phoenix' Paul Westphal led all scorers with 24 points.

Capitals enjoy big weekend

By The Associated Press

It was not long ago that the Washington Capitals were laughed at by the rest of the National Hockey League, following in the footsteps of their expansion predecessors.

Washington Coach Tommy McVie appears to have ended those days, molding his club into a determined group of athletes who still might lose more than they win, but not for lack of effort.

After beating the Pittsburgh Penguins 5-2 Saturday night, the Caps completed a successful weekend Sunday by gaining a 5-5 tie with the Philadelphia Flyers.

"We've made a lot of progress, and one day we hope to be as good as the Flyers," said McVie. "The fact that Philadelphia came from behind doesn't mean we're capable of knocking them off all the time."

That doesn't mean those days are far off. After the Flyers had come back four times for the tie, Coach Fred Shero expressed appreciation for the job McVie has done.

"He's put character into them," said Shero. "I didn't think it was possible, but Tommy's done it. Talent is no good unless you know how to work it."

Hard work had produced four victories in five games for the Caps before the Philadelphia game; a team that won a total of 19 games in its first two years in the NHL already has won 16 this season.

Rick MacLeish scored a power play goal with just 3:36 remaining, salvaging the tie for Philadelphia before a capacity crowd of 18,130 at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md.

In the other NHL games Sunday, the Montreal Canadiens edged the New York Islanders 2-1, the New York Rangers beat the St. Louis Blues 5-2, the Chicago Black Hawks routed the Cleveland Barons 9-3, the Penguins downed the Boston Bruins 5-2, and the Colorado Rockies bested the Minnesota North Stars 4-2.

Canadiens 2, Islanders 1

Yvan Cournoyer's goal midway through the second period lifted Montreal to its third straight victory over the Islanders this season and handed New York its third consecutive loss.

Rangers 5, Blues 2

Center Phil Esposito scored a goal and set up two others for the Rangers, who extended their home domination of St. Louis. The Blues have not won at Madison Square Garden since Nov. 13, 1968.

Black Hawks 9, Barons 3

Centers Stan Mikita, Ivan Boldirev and Jim Harrison scored two goals apiece, pacing Chicago's rout of Cleveland.

Penguins 5, Bruins 2

Rockies 4, North Stars 2

Denis Dupere tipped in a Colin Campbell shot with 1:44 remaining for the winning goal in Colorado's triumph over Minnesota. The victory broke a three-way tie for third place in the Smythe Division, sending the Rockies two points ahead of the North Stars and Vancouver Canucks.

No big thrill for Stockton

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dick Stockton acted like he could not understand what all the excitement was about, why everyone was treating him as if he had just found a new supply of natural gas.

The 25-year-old Stockton shocked a crowd of 14,571 with a 3-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2 triumph Sunday over Jimmy Connors, the world's top-ranked tennis player.

But Stockton treated it nonchalantly, even though he had not beaten Connors since they were juniors in 1969. And then, according to Connors, Jimmy was just 5-feet-4 and 98 pounds.

The upset should not have been that surprising. It completed the elimination of the top 10 seeded players, who fell like bowling pins all week.

Connors had not lost more than three games in any set in advancing to the final with victories over Buster Mottram, Wojtek Fibak, Tony Roche and Cliff Drysdale.

He had enveloped himself in an aura of invincibility.

"People seem to have the opinion that it's Connors and then everybody else," said Stockton after picking up his $40,000 check as winner of the $200,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.

"Sure, he's No. 1 in the world," said Stockton. "But there are a lot of players capable of beating him. Americans like myself who grew up with him are not awed by him and can beat him. Foreigners think there is no way to beat him."

LOU GENTILE has been elected chairman of the San Bernardino County Democratic Central Committee. In this position, he becomes a member of the executive committee of the California Democratic Central Committee.

Other county committee officers, sworn in Jan. 10 in San Bernardino, are Bobby Ray Vincent of Crestline, first vice chairman; Mary Grigsby of Rialto, second vice chairman; Gesa Kearney of Highland, third vice chairman; Kathleen Kinley of Ontario, secretary; and Kathy Roberts of San Bernardino, treasurer.

Gentile, Upland, is division chairman of business education at Chaffey College in Alta Loma.

REP. GLENN M. ANDERSON, D-Harbor City, in a speech delivered on the floor of the House of Representatives recently, urged support for his legislation to curb the misuse of firearms.

"Crime in this nation has reached a crucial point," the former California lieutenant governor said. "We must not ignore the problem any longer.

"It is time to enact legislation to punish anyone who misuses firearms and thus jeopardizes the rights and lives of law-abiding citizens.

"Our bill calls for a mandatory prison sentence of at least 5 years for anyone convicted of committing a federal crime with a firearm.

"This legislation, when enacted, will once and for all demonstrate that there will be no tolerance for those who commit crimes with firearms. Anyone who uses a gun illegally will be dealt with surely and effectively, and that means spending time in jail."

Anderson's legislation, H.R. 1559, has received broad bi-partisan support and is cosponsored by 75 congressmen.

SEN. H. L. "BILL" RICHARDSON, R-25th Dist., Arcadia, will receive the annual Law-and-Order Award at the Americanism Educational League's golden anniversary dinner Feb. 5.

The dinner will be held at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills.

Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, Ill., will deliver the keynote address entitled "Detente: Road to Disaster."

Actor Efrem Zimbalist Jr. of Encino will receive the American Patriot Award. Mrs. Jackie Harker, also of Encino, will receive the Community Service Award. She is president of California Federation of Republican Women.

SEN. WILLIAM "BILL" CAMPBELL, R-33rd Dist., Hacienda Heights, has introduced urgency legislation to prohibit any member of the Franchise Tax Board from examining individual tax returns.

His action, he said, followed a decision made last Thursday by members of the Franchise Tax Board to repeal a 16-year-old policy prohibiting, except under extreme circumstances, its access to individual tax returns.

"I want to emphasize that my motive for the introduction of this legislation is not founded in any mistrust of the members of the Franchise Tax Board," said Campbell. "Rather, I have a grave concern for the dangerous precedent such a policy would create."

Campbell said the board's decision was "frightening."

In light of recent legislative efforts to offer greater protection to individual privacy, he continued, it is incomprehensible to him that members of the board would take such a "regressive" step.

"We must do everything within our power to remove the potential for abuse of this highly confidential information. My legislation seeks to end that," Campbell said.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., West Covina, said that while he disagreed with the extension of amnesty President Carter had advanced his first day in office he was heartened by the fact that Carter did exactly what he said he would do.

"I would have preferred a case-by-case review," said Lloyd. "Mr. Carter said he would grant amnesty and he did. He did so with speed and dispatch, which means we can anticipate that he will keep his word in other areas.

"While I may be in disagreement with the President in principle, I am certainly in agreement with the methodology, which is keeping a promise."

Lloyd contends that, from the 1977 view, the war in Vietnam was wrong, but in light of those who gave their lives and those wounded, and others still missing, "we should have reviewed each case carefully on an individual basis."

"Let this be a lesson to us," he said. "Let us never enter a conflict which we do not intend to win."

LLOYD, speaking Monday in Anaheim at the California Association of Rehabilitational Facilities 3-day conference, reviewed legislation passed by the 94th Congress designed to meet the needs of the physically handicapped.

He reported on a resolution he introduced the opening day of the 95th Congress to establish a national policy giving special recognition to the needs of the physically disabled and the mobilization of resources in the private sector to integrate handicapped people into their communities.

Lloyd said programs for the handicapped are too small a part of the entire federal government's program to get the attention they deserve "and I believe this trend should be reversed," he said. "I commit myself to that trend reversal."

REP. GLENN M. ANDERSON, R-32nd Dist., Long Beach, has been re-elected by his Democratic colleagues on the House Public Works and Transportation Committee to serve as chairman of the committee's subcommittee on aviation.

Some 1,500 delegates will hear addresses by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston, Assembly speaker Leo McCarthy and State Senate President Pro Tem James Mills.

Also invited to speak are former Sen. John V. Tunney, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally and State Controller Ken Cory. San Francisco Mayor George R. Mascone also will participate.

ASSEMBLYMAN DAVE STIRLING, R-64th Dist., called Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s proposed 1977-78 budget "a perfect example of the inability of the Governor to curb the rapid growth of government bureaucracy."

Stirling said, "While the Governor does not call for a major new program in this budget, state spending will increase more than 13.5 per cent over the present budget if the California Legislature adopts the budget as submitted.

"We have been reminded previously by Governor Brown to lower our expectations of government services while he continues to pledge no new taxes. The Governor portrays himself as a fiscal conservative, although his budget and legislative record over the last two years obviously prove the opposite."

Stirling said then Gov. Ronald Reagan's last budget proposal in 1974-75 was $9.8 billion while Brown's proposed 1977-78 budget shows expenditures increased by $4.5 billion, or nearly 46 per cent.

"This is double the rate of inflation for the same period," said Stirling.

Funeral industry probe

Comfortable with state laws, says CFDA exec

(EDITOR'S NOTE: State law regulating the $150 million-a-year California funeral business is described by industry spokesmen as one of the nation's best. However, enforcement of the laws has been questioned by industry critics, who point out that the state's regulatory agency has until this year been dominated by undertakers. The following story examines the origin of state laws, their enforcement and the relationships between the industry and state laws, their enforcement and the relationship between the industry and state regulatory officials.)

"We are very comfortable with the laws in California. We have no problems with the laws, the statutes, the rules or the regulations." — John Browning, executive director of the California Funeral Directors Association.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Spokesmen for the California funeral business say state laws governing their profession are among the most progressive in the nation and contend that imposition of federal rules would weaken the authority of the state Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers, the agency charged with regulating the industry.

During public hearings here last June on the Federal Trade Commission's proposed rules for the funeral industry, both Robert Webster, then president of the state board, and David Buck, the board's executive secretary, echoed the industry position California was adequately regulating the funeral industry and that the FTC rules were therefore not needed. Their opinions were contradicted by the state Department of Consumer Affairs, of which the board is a part, which lent enthusiastic support to the FTC proposals.

Although both Webster and Buck are state employes, their opinions evidently came as little surprise to the California Funeral Directors Association, which represents about 70 per cent of the state's 873 funeral homes. The June newsletter of the CFDA states:

"One June 9, we, along with others, will have an opportunity to express our views before the FTC. A slate of spokesmen have been chosen which include Mr. Robert Webster, president of the state Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers, Mr. David Buck, executive secretary (of the board), Mr. Bruce Hotchkiss, (a board member) of the Hotchkiss Mortuary..., Mr. John Browning, executive director of the California Funeral Directors Association."

Webster denies being a spokesman for the industry. However, during the hearings, questioning by FTC attorneys revealed that the outline of his testimony had been submitted to the FTC by the CFDA's attorney, Edgar Fraser.

Buck's approach to his regulatory duties has been called into question by the board's lack of action in the case of Nicholas and Daisy Daphne, operators of the Bay Area's largest chain of funeral homes. On Dec. 3, 1976, the San Francisco district attorney's office, after a year-long investigation, charged the Daphnes with 45 counts of illegal practices, including bodysnatching, embalming bodies without permission, intimidating grieving families and disposing of remains without proper permits.

Buck was contacted by The Associated Press shortly after the district attorney's suit was fied and asked why the board did not take acion against Daphne. He declined to discuss the case except to say, "the board has been working very closely with the district attorney's office in that investigation. We have been fully aware of what's happening. They filed rather than us for the board's convenience. We will file upon their record of their conviction."

Buck's account was disputed by Ray Bonner, head of the San Francisco district attorney's consumer fraud division, and Carol Hehmeyer, the assistant district attorney prosecuting the Daphne case, both of whom characterized the board as a reluctant participant and pointed out that an administrative proceeding against Daphne would have been far easier than a prosecution.

"They're not taking step one," said Bonner, noting that the board had received its first complaint about Daphne in November, 1975. "The DA's prosecution should be the last step down the line."

Hehmeyer said the board was "cooperating quite well now, but prior to us filing the lawsuit they would just forward us complaints. We didn't get any investigative backup."

On Jan. 10, after further inquiries were made by The Associated Press, Buck called the Los Angeles bureau to say that the board had reversed itself and decided, upon the advice of deputy attorney general Joel Primes, to proceed against Daphne instead of waiting for the outcome of the district attorney's prosecution.

"I get my advice from attorneys," Buck said. "We're trying to accomplish this as expeditiously and economically as anyone. I think the only apology I owe in this case is for trying to be somewhat economical in the way we're pursuing it. We agree that this may drag out and we're going to file."

Primes, however, says that no decision has been made as to the board proceeding against Daphne.

"That wouldn't be accurate as to a decision was made to file," Primes said on Jan. 11. "I can't tell you if the office of the attorney general is going to file because I don't have any evidence. I don't have anything. I talked to Mr. Buck yesterday and it has not been sent over."

Buck contends that waiting for the outcome of the district attorney's suit would have made proceeding against Daphne easier because a conviction would automatically mean the loss of his license.

However, in at least one other case, a funeral director convicted of felonies has been allowed to continue in business.

A San Bernardino undertaker, Frank Tillie, Jr., pleaded guilty in July, 1974 to two counts of arson and one count of attempted arson in connection with fires set at competing funeral homes. Tillie spent eight months in prison and upon his release, the board suspended his funeral director's license for 10 days. Today, he is back in business at his old location.

The original state law governing the funeral industry and creating the state board in 1913 was written by two undertakers, Ugene Blalock of Forest Lawn and Michael deYoung of deYoung Memorial Chapel in Stockton. Until 1971, when one public member was added, the five-man board was composed entirely of funeral directors. In 1974, two more public members were added, bringing the board's total membership to eight.

Under terms of a bill approved by the state legislature last year mandating a majority of public members for all such regulatory agencies, the board this year will, for the first time, have more public members than undertakers. Robert Truehaft, co-author with Jessica Mitford of "The American Way of Death" and the most recent public appointee to the board, says he doubts that having a majority of public members "is going to mean much change as long as there are industry members on the board."

Truehaft, a vociferous critic of the funeral industry, says regulation of the California funeral industry "is practically nonexistent. There is very, very little consumer protection that is enforced by the state Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers in the state of California."

Truehaft says regulations relating to pre-need trust funds are enforced because "most funeral directors don't like preneed. They're generally against it. Since they have been in control of the board, they only enforce regulations that are of interest to them.

"The disciplinary cases we've had are utterly absurd," says Truehaft. "A major proceeding takes place because a funeral director is charged with being intoxicated at a funeral so he doesn't arrange for the family to be in the first car following the hearse and grown people are supposed to hold hearings on this."

Truehaft says funeral abuses are as widespread in California today as ever and terms the state board "a terrible waste of the taxpayers' money" and says enforcement of laws would be more effective if there was no board.

"The existence of the board and the existence of licenses legitimizes the industry-wide practices that are most exploitative of the consumer," Truehaft says, adding that, "From the public's point of view, the important thing is not to dictate to them that they should have cheap funerals or they shouldn't have fancy funerals, the inportant thing is for them to have freedom of choice, which they don't have now."

NEXT: The options open to consumers.

More diesel automobile on the road

MAPLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — With the growing number of diesel engine automobiles on the road, a publisher of maps and travel books has issued a motorists' guide which pinpoints the service stations that sell diesel fuel.

"Diesel Stop Directory and Road Atlas," by Hammond, offers 8,400 listings of diesel fuel dispensers in the United States and Canada. The publication lists the brand name of fuel carried, the street and town addresses, and the location of disel stations on each road map for the 50 states and Canada.

Are log cabins coming back?

SEATTLE (AP) — Log cabins, a staple of rugged frontier life, have gained a foothold in the modern housing market here, and they're about to pop up in subdivisions.

About 3,000 log cabins, ranging from the crude to the plush, have been built in modern-day Washington, builders estimate. The half-dozen firms which make log cabins say they are selling 300 to 400 a year — or about 1 per cent of all new housing.

The cabins appeal to those seeking a "natural" lifestyle, to do-it-yourselfers — so far, about 1,000 have taken a class in how to build log cabins — and to people who want durable homes.

One firm which has been in business for 28 years, Sylvan Products of Port Orchard, will turn out 30 to 35 house kits this year. Owner Ken Haines cuts the logs to size, treats them with preservatives and markets them ready for assembly.

Haines is forging ahead with plans to enter the subdivision market. Sylvan log cabins soon may be built on 44 five-acre tracts in Gig Harbor and 100 five-acre sites in Utah.

Log cabin companies usually sell a kit, including the logs — marked by number and letters — and instructions. The kit is only a frame, so buyers either put in plumbing, roofing, flooring, doors and windows themselves or subcontract for them.

Once it is finished, a log cabin usually costs about the same as a wood frame house. Companies charge by the square or linear foot, plus extra for interior walls, basements and second stories.

Another firm, Authentic Log Cabins, finished a 24 x 30 cabin as expensively as it could "to show what you can do," and said it would go for about $31,360 today.

Merit 100's Here!

The MERIT breakthrough technology that produced a whole new taste standard in low tar smoking has now been applied to a 100mm cigarette.

New MERIT 100's. Only 12 mg. tar. Yet packed with 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco. Tobacco fortified with certain key flavor-rich ingredients isolated in cigarette smoke and proven to deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

If you smoke but haven't chosen to take advantage of the MERIT breakthrough because you prefer a longer length cigarette, you'll be interested.

Kings: 9 mg. "tar," 0.7 mg. nicotine—
100's: 12 mg. "tar," 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

MERIT & MERIT MENTHOL. KINGS & 100's.

Because now you have your MERIT, too. Read the test results for yourself.

Test Data Conclusive

New 12 mg. tar MERIT 100's were taste-tested against a number of major 100mm brands ranging from 17 mg. to 19 mg. tar.
